REASON FOR INLAND HIGHWAY GIVEN

U.S. Explains Alaska Road Choice

New Jap Thrust Is Reported

By FRANCIS McCARTHY

MELBOURNE, March 13.—(BUP)—A Japanese thrust into the Solomon islands despite persistent Allied aerial counter-blows today indicated an attempt to cut supply lines from America and spread a huge pincers around northern Australia in preparation for an invasion.

Although Allied bombers (presumably including United States craft) continued to strike at the Japanese invasion bases in the north, the most important development appeared to be disclosure by the air ministry that a Japanese naval force was reported off Buka island in the Solomon group three days ago.

Nothing further was known regarding this force, which was sighted by Australian planes about 1,000 miles northeast of Australia and some 570 miles east of the New Guinea invasion bases established by Japan on Huon Gulf. But its objective appeared to be the long chain of islands including the New Hebrides, stretching southeastward toward New Zealand and dominating the sea lanes over which reinforcements and supplies must come from America.

Regardless of the destination of the Japanese fleet off Buka island, the eastward rush by the enemy was regarded here as designed to extend the eastern prong of the pincers.

If the enemy is successful in extending and consolidating its hold in the Solomons the threat to sea lines from America would be increased greatly and the Japanese efforts to make New Guinea a base for invasion of the north coast of Australia would be facilitated.

Allies Will Enter Air Training Plan

By B. T. RICHARDSON

Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, March 13.—The Commonwealth Air Training Plan is being broadened to make it the United Nations Air Training Plan, it was learned here, though the change is not officially confirmed and the details are not disclosed.

In describing Canada's war effort on a United Nations broadcast from Washington this week, the Canadian minister, Hon. Leighton McCarthy, stated that British air training program in Canada would shortly become the United Nations Air Training Plan.

Since the United States entered the war, discussions have been held by Canadian and American authorities regarding use of Canadian air training facilities for U.S. needs. No arrangement of this kind has been announced, and now it is expected that a broader plan to take in air recruits from all members of the United Nations alliance will be worked out.

Murder Charge

Charles H. Bennett, 65-year-old Rocky Mountain House farmer, who is being given preliminary hearing on charge of murdering his neighbor, Theodore DeVitt, in Red Deer police court.

Sons Tell Of Violent Death Murder Trial

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

RED DEER, March 13.—A tale of sudden and violent death was unfolded in police court here Friday by two sons of Charles H. Bennett, 65-year-old Rocky Mountain House farmer, who is being given preliminary hearing before Magistrate M. Millard on a charge of murdering his son-in-law and neighbor, Theodore DeVitt, in August, 1938.

Bennett, his tall, lean frame slightly bent, sat quietly in the dock without any visible sign of emotion, as his sons testified they had seen their father fire two bullets into DeVitt's skull and then club him to death with a hammer.

SHOOTING ALLEGED

A mild stir was created in the courtroom when witnesses, under cross-examination, stated that Bennett's daughter Florence, who had married DeVitt, had died as a result of a shooting affray between husband and wife.

At the time of her death in Red Deer hospital Mrs. DeVitt was alleged to have made a statement on her death-bed that the wound which ended her life had been accidentally inflicted while she was hunting ducks on a creek near her home.

Bennett's sons declared that on the day of the murder DeVitt ap-

Seven Sentenced In U.S. As Spies

NEW YORK, March 13—(AP)—Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard today sentenced seven persons—defendants in the first spy trial since the United States entered the war—to a total of 117 years in prison for espionage conspiracy.

Three were given 20 years' imprisonment each; three others, including a woman, 15 years each, and one 12 years.

Judge Goddard, in passing sentence, told the defendants he was "not only punishing you for your treachery," but "warning others like you that such acts will not be tolerated."

SOVIETS PUSH FORWARD

Russ Say Nazis 'Worn Out'

MOSCOW, March 13.—(AP)—Red Star, voice of the Soviet army, declared today that the offensive this spring would be Russian, not German, and described the Nazi military machine as worn out from its costly fall drive and the battering it has received this winter.

Dispatches from the front said the Germans were trying desperately to hold on, counter-attacking repeatedly and at heavy cost, but that the Red army still pushed steadily, if slowly, to the west.

Reports from the southern front said Marshal Timoshenko's Donets Basin offensive, instead of being halted by the counter attacks, had wiped out two strong points and swept on into an unidentified town where German bodies littered the streets after a fierce fight.

BREAK RUMANIAN ATTACK

Elsewhere on the southern front Russian artillery fire was said to have broken up a Rumanian counter attack.

The German counter-blows were described as hardest in the Staraya Russa area where the German 16th Army is trapped and desperate, but that these, too, were said to have failed.

On the central front, where the Red army is driving past Vyasma and Rshev toward Smolensk, three companies of the 365th Regiment of the German 211th Infantry Division were killed attempting a counter-attack and a reserve battalion of the same division was wiped out, the Russians said.

They also reported a German ski battalion destroyed.

"The enemy is sustaining heavy losses in war equipment and man power," the Soviet information bureau reiterated.

Curtin Sends Important Note To Roosevelt

CANBERRA, Australia, March 13.—(BUP)—Prime Minister John Curtin confirmed today that he had sent an important message to President Roosevelt and it was understood that a formal reply was awaited.

The message, which may have concerned United Nations use of Australia as an offensive as well as defensive base, was delivered to Mr. Roosevelt by Minister Richard Casey at Washington.

Casey was understood to have reported back to Curtin but the Prime Minister also is awaiting a formal reply from the President.

There recently have been many suggestions in authoritative sources here that a United Nations offensive based on Australia is the best possible defence against the steadily increasing threat of Japanese invasion.

At the same time, the Australians need large supplies of war equipment, especially airplanes and tanks, to withstand the expected enemy drive from the north.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP)—President Roosevelt told reporters today that a reply to a message he had received from John Curtin, Australian prime minister, was under study.

FOR CIVILIAN USE

Ban Truck Manufacture

OTTAWA, March 13.—(CP)—Munitions Minister Howe announced today no further manufacture of civilian trucks of any kind will be permitted after tomorrow, except by permit.

"The United Nations now can absorb all the trucks we can make," Mr. Howe said. "To meet these requirements and to conserve raw materials, production of trucks for civilian use must cease."

All trucks manufactured in the future will be designed for military purposes.

Mr. Howe made clear that "it will be virtually impossible" for a civilian to purchase a new truck when trucks built before March 14 have been sold.

"Any sales for civilian use will reduce the production of military vehicles," the minister said. "Hence no permit will be granted unless it can be shown that the need is imperative and in the public interest, and unless it can be shown that a reconditioned truck would not serve the purpose equally well."

Admiralty Indentifies 3 U-Boats Sunk In Attack On British Convoy

LONDON, March 13.—(CP)—The Admiralty said today that three German submarines announced sunk Jan. 3 in a "sustained and determined" attack on a British convoy were the U-131, U-434 and U-574, all commissioned in 1941.

The announcement said the U-574 was destroyed during the morning of Dec. 18, 1941, by the British escort vessel Stork, after the raider had attacked the convoy and sunk the former United States destroyer Stanley.

The Stanley had taken part the previous day in the destruction of the U-434.

The admiralty said it was "Worthy of note that each of these three U-boats had been in commission nearly six months but the aggregate success achieved by all three consisted in sinking H.M.S. Stanley and one merchant ship."

RAMMED BY STORK

The U-574 was rammed by the Stork, the admiralty said, after her motors had been put out of action by depth charges.

"Her commander was reluctant to bring the ship to the surface and it is reported that a heated altercation broke out between the officers before the commanding officer was forced to give the order to blow the tanks," the statement said.

Two officers, including the commander, and 25 men, of a total of 43 aboard the U-574, were saved and now are prisoners of war, the admiralty said.

The U-131 had a complement of 48 officers and men, all of whom were saved, the admiralty said.

All but two of those aboard the U-434 were reported saved and taken prisoner, including the commander.

Witness Tells Of Bayoneting By Jap Killers

HELEN KIRKPATRICK

Copyright, 1942, by the Chicago Daily News and The Edmonton Bulletin

LONDON, March 13—The Japanese atrocities at Hong Kong, described to the Commons a few days ago by foreign secretary Anthony Eden, further confirmed by reports of Britons who have escaped, have stirred in this country feelings of horror and hatred such as have not been evident during the entire war.

EXCLUSIVE

The account of bayoneting and rape which Phyllis Harrop, the first foreign woman to escape from Japanese-occupied Hong Kong witnessed, is reproduced in the newspapers here today. Miss Harrop reached Chungking where she confirmed the foreign secretary's statement.

Added to these reports are statements by E. M. Whitehead, assistant matron of the British military hospital of Hong Kong, who reached here some weeks ago.

HOPES THEY ARE DEAD

According to Miss Whitehead, all the nurses kept loaded revolvers, as they "knew what to expect from the Japanese." Eleven nurses there could not have escaped, she thought, and she hoped that they were dead.

The first repercussions here were minor as the number of Japs in Great Britain is very small. But the London manager of the Yokohama Specie bank, Viscount Kano,

City Workers Accept Offer Living Bonus

Civic employees, through their unions, by a decisive vote, have decided to accept the $2 and $1 weekly cost-of-living bonus offer made them by the city council.

Officers of the Federation of Civic Employees, the negotiating body for employees, stated Friday that unofficial returns from voting already completed indicated that the vote for acceptance will carry by a majority of as high as 90 per cent.

One union, Local 30, civic laborers, rejected the offer by a majority of four, it was stated, but other unions that completed the balloting gave practically unanimous assent.

CONFIDENT OF ACCEPTANCE

Civic Union 52, clerical staff, will take the vote Friday. Officials of the union expressed confidence that more than 90 per cent. of the membership of this union will accept the offer.

Vote returns from the unions will be reported to the next meeting of the Federation of Civic Employees. This meeting is now scheduled for Tuesday evening next. Following the meeting the official result of the vote will be announced.

In the meantime the city commissioners are struggling with the problem of meeting the cost of the proposed bonus payment, and Friday were discussing ways and means of meeting this increased expenditure without too great an increase in the mill rate.

Gasoline Ration Unit 5 Gallons

By B. T. RICHARDSON

Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, March 13—The basic gasoline ration will start at five gallons per unit, it was stated authoritatively today, in reply to recent reports that the unit might be cut down to four gallons. Gasoline rationing starts on April 1.

There is no guarantee how long the gasoline unit will remain at five gallons, it was said, and this has been emphasized repeatedly to the public. The rate of tanker sinkings along the eastern American coast is likely to restrict supplies in Eastern Canada, while shipping shortage will throw a greater burden on domestic production in Alberta.

Oil control officials have discovered, it was learned, that the Canadian motoring public includes a great number of chiselers who have applied for higher ration category than they are entitled to. The majority of applications for special categories, that is, above "A" are being written down, since the information furnished in applications shows motorists should be able to get along on less gasoline than many of them have asked.

A reliable supply source indicated that motorists better worry about tires rather than gasoline, that the rubber shortage is much worse than has been understood generally, and that lack of tires will stop motoring before the supply of gaosline does.

Dr H. E. Bulyea, Dental Professor, Plans To Retire

Dr. Harry E. Bulyea, D.M.D., professor operative dentistry, and director of the school of dentistry, University of Alberta, announced Thursday at the annual dinner of the Edmonton Dental club that he was retiring from the chair of dentistry at the end of the present university term.

He was born at Central Cambridge, Queen's County, N.B., on January 14, 1873, and was educated at New Brunswick and Harvard universities.

When the dentistry department of the University was formed shortly after the first great war, Dr. Bulyea was appointed its director, and has continued in that post since.

U.S. Troops Greeted Here By "Star Spangled Banner"

O say can you see
By the dawn's early light
What so proudly we hailed
At the twilight's last gleaming . . .

Deeply moving and intensely dramatic because of its very spontaneity was the unique scene enacted at the C.P.R. station Thursday evening as hundreds of Edmonton residents welcomed troops from the United States on their way to undertake the stupendous and vital construction of the Alaska highway.

As the smart-appearing band from No. 4 Initial Training School, R.C.A.F., played the beautiful and thrilling "Star Spangled Banner," the second of two long trains carrying troops and equipment rolled to a brief halt at the C.P.R. station.

Particularly gripping, because it was unrehearsed, was the spectacle of officers and men, riding into the depot on the steps of the Pullmans and atop a flat car carrying military tractors.

As the train crept slowly to a stop the strains of the National Anthem of America was detected by one soldier after another above the grinding of the wheels against the rails.

Heels clicked smartly together, shoulders were thrown back and arms curved in the full, wavy salute of the United States Army.

UNITED IN DEFENSE OF DEMOCRACY

And as the soldiers stood silhouetted against a blue Alberta sky in "the twilight's last gleaming", amid camouflaged trucks, tractors and other equipment, they seemed to symbolize the potential might of America now mobilizing for the final and inevitable victory.

The rigid, living picture seemed to shout a mighty affirmative reply to those closing questioning words:

O say does that star spangled banner yet wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

On the platform ready to extend a welcome on behalf of the Canadian armed forces were Lt.-Col. E. Brown, M.M., E.D., area commandant, and R.S.M. F. W. Purkis of the Edmonton garrison and the following officers from No. 4 I.T.S., R.C.A.F.:

Today's War Moves

By LOUIS F. KEEMLE

Copyright, 1942, by the British United Press and The Edmonton Bulletin

The effective work of Australian and American planes in blasting Japanese invaders of New Guinea and Papua offers the best hope that the Japanese time-table for the invasion of Australia will be slowed down and perhaps wrecked.

Time is the essence of Japanese strategy. If they are to take the northern part of Australia, it must be done quickly, before American fighters and bombers arrive in such numbers that the feat will be impossible.

The prospects are fair that they will be able to take New Guinea, despite losses. In all their opera-

German Naval Base Fired In R.A.F. Attack

LONDON, March 13.—(CP)—The Royal Air Force bombed the 26,000-ton German battleship Gneisenau and set naval installations on fire at the Kiel base in continuation last night of the "great spring air offensive" started last week-end.

The air ministry said today improved flying conditions, after bad weather Wednesday, enabled a medium force of four and two-engined bombers to strike at northwestern Germany and mine German waters.

The air ministry said many fires were left burning in the Kiel shipyards after a big attack on the German naval base during the night.

The R.A.F. apparently returned to the attack on German-held territory this afternoon. Residents of southeast coast towns heard the roar of a great number of planes heading in the direction of Calais and Boulogne, on the French coast.

Shortly afterwards burst of cannon fire and the boom of heavy anti-aircraft guns on the French coast were heard. It appeared to be the biggest operation of a busy day. Earlier many squadrons of planes had been heard going and returning over the channel.

Eight bombers were lost in the night's operations, which also included attacks on other objectives in northwest Germany and mining of enemy waters, a communique said.

Needs Of Air Bases Is Factor

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP)—A United States war department official said today that the need of a supply route for air bases was the principal factor leading to the American - Canadian decision to locate the Alaska highway well inland instead of near the coast.

Asked about the Alaska highway commission's description of the inland route as "a tragic blunder," he replied: "Of course we don't think it was a tragic blunder."

All factors involved in locating the long-projected overland route between the United States and Alaska were considered carefully, he said, and the need of highway communications with air fields already built in the Canadian far north and Alaska finally determined the choice.

A Missouri engineer with a distinguished record in the United States army, Col. William M. Hoge, is the boss for construction of the highway.

Army engineers said today that engineer troops, under Col. Hoge, already have arrived in Dawson Creek, B.C., where the first main base will be established for sur-

Alaska Highway Link Is Urged By Coast City

SEATTLE, March 13.—(AP)—Seattle's Chamber of Commerce Alaskan affairs committee voted full support Thursday to efforts in behalf of a proposed British Columbia link with the projected highway from Edmonton to Alaska.

A committee will confer today at Victoria with Premier John Hart of British Columbia.

For years, organizations in Washington and British Columbia have worked for a highway link to Vancouver, B.C., and Washington state with Alaska, with expectations of a new flow of tourists and commerce. Now, under United States army plans for the highway, the highway to tap and northland will enter the United States far to the east.

VIA PRINCE GEORGE

The alternative proposal on which Seattle civic groups now are working is for a link between Vancouver and the Alaskan highway, via Prince George, B.C.

Advocates of the highway link said that present plans calls for transportation by the Northern Alberta Railway between Edmonton and Dawson Creek.

There has been no use made so far of the present highway from Edmonton to Dawson Creek or Fort St. John, a road which is only troublesome during extremely bad spells of the winter. They pointed out that a road from Dawson Creek to Prince George connecting with the present road in B.C. would provide a through highway to the west coast.

On completion of the highway to Alaska the road would allow travel the full route between Alaska and the west coast of British Columbia and the United States.

ACTION IN BURMA

British Contact Chinese Forces

LONDON, March 13.—(CP)—British and Chinese troops attempting to consolidate a front along the Toungoo highway, 80 miles north of Rangoon, have joined forces for the first time in the battle of Burma, a military commentator said today.

Contact between the armies was made half-way between Pegu and Yaunglebin, 45 miles apart on the Rangoon-Mandalay railroad, he said.

British troops continuing to withdraw from South Burma were reported to have established a front on the Prome road near Tharrawaddy, about 60 miles north of Rangoon where the situation was described as "stabilised."

The commentator said he was not able to estimate the number of Chinese who effected a liaison with the British. Details of the operation may be available tomorrow, he said.

The Chinese fighting beside the British were described as "very good troops" and equipped with "plenty of small arms." The commentator said, however, that they lacked heavier types of equipment such as artillery.

travelling on the first section of the train, and offered any assistance the U.S. troops might need. Col. Brown also proferred his services to the train commander of the second train, a young lieutenant.

The first of the two trains that rolled in from the south during the afternoon Thursday, carried troops and heavy trucks for the most part. On the second which was about two hours later, was a huge amount of bridge building equipment mounted on a long string of flat cars with more heavy trucks, tractors and other equipment.

All of the troops were engineer specialists on the second train, trained for constructing bridges under fire of the enemy.

The commanding officer, a young captain from Oregon, with ten years of service to his credit, was making his first visit to Canada.

The state of Texas was prominently represented in both trains, although practically every state in the union was represented in the company.

The troops left their camp in Kansas on Monday and have continued without any long stop-overs.

Officers and men on the second train were more than thrilled by the reception. The air force band, playing the Star Spangled Banner, had a powerful emotional effect on the boys from south of the border.

"We sure never dreamed of anything like this. Edmonton will never be forgotten. It was the first city to stage this kind of a welcome," one of the officers told a Bulletin reporter.

"The people in Canada have been very, very kind to us all the way up, but this beats everything yet," was the way a young corporal summed up his reactions.

"That band played the Star Spangled Banner just like John Phillip Sousa," was the tribute of a young sergeant. "I saw one of our big huskies wipe his eyes after the music stopped," he added.

The troops were not permitted to leave the depot premises but they swarmed over the platform while they were here.

The depot refreshment stand was just about sold out of everything eatable and drinkable by the time the second train pulled out for Dawson Creek.

"THUMBS UP"

After the band saluted the troops with their country's national anthem there was a brief period of silence and then cheers broke out from the troops and the crowd of citizens.

When the second train finally drew away from the station with the air force band playing "The Stars and Stripes For Ever" in spirited fashion, the departing Yanks gave the famed Churchill thumbs-up from coach windows while cheers and yells of "good luck" followed in the wake of the speeding train.

Curiosity about the country they are heading for was acute with every officer and man.

"Will it be cold up there? How big a place is Dawson Creek? When should we get there?" and other questions of a similar nature were hurled at reporters and others on the station platform.

But there was one question that just had to be answered. It was more important than any other.

"Will there be good fishing in the mountains?"

When told there were lots of fish in the northern mountain streams the biggest war worry of the troops seemed to have been set aside.

Two of the boys were full-blooded Mexicans although citizens of the United States.

"We were just born in Mexico but we have lived all our lives in Texas," one of them explained.

ALUMINUM PONTOONS

A feature of the equipment carried on the second train was a large number of aluminum pontoons.

Each pontoon, which is actually a metal boat, weighs 1,450 pounds. Wooden stringers are laid along the pontoons which are placed parallel to each other when a river is to be bridged in a hurry.

"We have practiced bridging streams under fire. We can bridge at the rate of a foot a minute," one of the men proudly declared.

The trucks, of which there were nearly two score, are for the most part huge General Motors Co., 2½-ton models. They have four wheels at the rear. They are used for clearing cargoes.

"The food has been good, the people have been grand. We have had lots of fun exchanging souvenirs. We feel we have everything in common with you Canadians. A lot of us from away down south are not looking forward to this task as a picnic. But here's the way we look at it. We've got a job to do, so let's go and get it done as quickly as we can," was the way a young N.C.O. described the feelings of the troops in general.

BAND IS TARGET

Practically all of the boys seemed to have cameras. The R.C.A.F. band, led by Sgt. Edward Kirkwood, was the target for most of the camera sniping.

The commanding officer expressed great surprise at the size of Edmonton and other Canadian cities.

The men were tickled to receive copies of The Bulletin.

The R.C.A.F. band, which performed so brilliantly, was present through the permission of Wing Commander J. A. Hutchison, officer commanding No. 4 I.T.S., R.C.A.F.

MANY QUESTIONS

The presence in the crowd of many men in uniform prompted many questions about their apparel and ratings. Questions about the airport were numerous. They had heard of Edmonton's fame as the gateway to the north and explained they were anxious to see the landing field that is the home of so many famous "bush pilots".

Clustered in threes and fours on the platform were United States boys from local air training schools chatting with their fellow countrymen. Similar scenes prevailed between the troops and former United States residents who now make their home in the city.

These included Hugh John Macdonald, K.C., M.L.A.

Cigarettes, chocolate bars and other treats were given out by good Samaritans and the booth at the station entrance had its shelves emptied by eager purchasers off each train.

One husky six-footer marched out of the station toting two boxfuls of bars in his arms with three streamers of postage stamps dangling from his teeth.

LETTERS FOR HOME

Seen in the hands of nearly every engineer, as he jumped off the train were letters for mailing. Some carried large bundles of mail collected from other boys. A young member of the force with a philanthropic frame of mind appeared to be thrilled at the experience of receiving $1.10 for every American dollar he changed.

Another lad from Texas expressed disappointment at not seeing any snow.

He stated that in his 18 years in Texas he had seen snow only three times and now, after travelling thousands of miles north he still failed to see any amount of it.

They had been on the train for four days and three nights and several boys expressed the urge to take a jaunt down Edmonton's wide streets, "Just to stretch their legs."

OBTAIN ADDRESSES

Exchange of addresses with dozens of Edmonton's fair sex continued throughout the brief stop. In fact, the officers in charge found difficulty getting the boys back into their quarters at the "All Aboard" signal, as they feverishly waited for young ladies to complete writing the addresses on the backs of writing tablets and on any other pieces of paper that were available.

The majority of the men were draftees with about 13 weeks of training at Fort Riley, Kansas. Their training was chiefly army engineering with routine drills, marching and target practice as part of their course.

DRESSED FOR WINTER

Many of the men on the first train were dressed in fur-lined gabardine parkas, for which they admitted they had found no use to date, but looked forward to using them as they approached their destination.

An extra car was added to the second train in Edmonton to accommodate 26 men of the first train who were left behind at Moose Jaw. They failed to return from a jaunt down town before the train pulled out.

There were several signalmen in the first group.

Several boys proudly displayed shiny Maltese cross emblems on their breasts. Suspended below the cross was a panel inscription containing the word "rifle".

This was a reward for efficient marksmanship. One young man displayed two bars, one bearing the word "rifle" and the other the word "machine gun". "If we have to do more than build roads, we're prepared for it," one engineer stated as he pointed to the marksmanship emblem.

Their faces tanned with southern summers, and hardened with exposure in the course of their engineering pursuits, the company appeared to be well suited for the arduous task that lies ahead.

ALL STATES REPRESENTED

Practically all states of the Union were represented. There was Martinus, a Spaniard, from New Mexico, and Bournias, a Greek, from Tennessee. There were several from the plains of Texas, and one from the beaches of Florida. There was one from the prairies of Montana and one from the deserts of Nevada.

Hold Everything

Uniform Price System Is Set For Motor Cars

OTTAWA March 13—(CP)—A new price policy under which a uniform pricing system for automobiles has been established across Canada was announced Thursday night by the munitions and supply department.

One source said the order would mean lower prices for automobiles at points in the east and west most distant from automobile plants.

While addition of freight charges to the uniform price will result in variation of prices across the country the differences will not be as great as at present it was predicted.

PAY SAME PRICE

After March 16 every purchaser of a new motor vehicle will pay the same price apart from freight charges, for any given model of any given make, regardless of where in Canada the sale is made.

The new order was issued by J. H. Berry, motor vehicle controller, approved by R. C. Berkinshaw, chairman of the wartime industries control board, and concurred in by Donald Gordon, chairman of the wartime prices and trade board.

"To the established retail price at the manufacturer's plant, or at his headquarters in Canada, the dealer will add a charge to cover an agreed transportation cost from the factory to the dealer's location, plus a charge of $25 per passenger car or motorcycle, or $35 per truck or bus, to cover the unloading and the servicing that is necessary before delivery," the department's statement said.

UNIFORM SYSTEM

"Under this new price policy," said Mr. Berry, "a uniform automobile pricing system has been established for the whole Dominion."

Production of passenger automobiles for civilian use has been ordered halted effective March 31, automatically limiting the number of cars to which the uniform price plan can be applied.

Motorcycles and trucks, to which the order also applies, will still be manufactured but production is being reduced and capacity of plants engaged in manufacturing these vehicles will be devoted largely to meeting war needs.

U.S. Explains Choice Inland Alaska Route

vey and construction of a pioneer road over the route of nearly 1,500 miles.

That job completed, the public roads administration will move in to build a crushed-rock motor highway 24 feet wide, following the pioneer road constructed by the engineers.

FIRST ROAD NECESSARY

"This pioneer road," said one engineer officer, "will be passable—and not much else. It's essential, however, to make possible the movement of heavy equipment needed for the highway construction."

The route selected for the highway, announced last week in Ottawa by Prime Minister Mackenzie King, will traverse the wilderness of the Yukon territory and enter Alaska at boundary, well to the north of Yukon river.

At Dawson Creek, northwest of Edmonton, the engineers will establish their southernmost railhead, or base of supplies. Whitehorse, in the Yukon, will be the northern railhead, and surveying and construction crews will work north and southeast from Whitehorse.

Beginning at Dawson Creek, where it will connect with the existing Canadian highway system, the Alaska highway will stretch northwestward through Fort St. John and Fort Nelson, B.C., to Watson Lake, just north of the Yukon boundary from Lower Post, B.C.

DIFFICULTIES SEEN

From Watson Lake the highway will go west to Whitehorse, and from there northwest to Boundary. The difficulties are suggested by the fact this latter stretch, nearly 600 miles in a straight line, goes through territory which in large part has never been surveyed.

The boundary will be the northernmost point on the highway, which will drop from there southwestward to Big Delta on the Tanana river, about 75 miles southeast of Fairbanks. A highway already connects Big Delta with Fairbanks, and the existing highway system of Alaska.

Col. Hoge, assigned to direct both surveying and initial construction for this huge undertaking, proved during the Meuse-Argonne offensive in the first Great War his ability to handle a tough assignment.

BUILDS MEUSE BRIDGE

After reconnoitring personally the site for a pontoon bridge over the Meuse, in daylight and under direct shell fire, he ordered a train of wagons moved to the site under enemy observation, supervised construction of the bridge and the successful crossing of the train. The exploit won the Distinguished Service Cross for him.

Before he was assigned to the Alaska highway work, Col. Hoge was executive officer of the engineer replacement training centre at Fort Belvoir, Va.

The time necessary to complete the highway cannot be estimated accurately until the surveys are completed for the entire route, engineers said, but preliminary estimates have been 18 to 24 months for the job, from start to finish.

Funny Business

"He's waiting for the first note of reveille—that's when his furlough starts!"

DID YOU TAKE A LAXATIVE TODAY?

Do you really know why constipation is so harmful?

You probably know that constipation sets up poisons in the large intestine or colon. But do you know that these poisons seep through the walls of the colon and infect the bloodstream? They set up toxic accumulations in kidneys and liver and are contributing causes of rheumatic pains, sciatica and backache.

Most laxatives only act in the colon. Kruschen does more. It is the laxative with a double action. Besides ridding the colon of stagnating waste matter, Kruschen's mineral salts have a diuretic action. They flush the kidneys, help to clear the bloodstream of all poisonous matter, and so protect your whole system from that form of infection.

You can get special value now in Kruschen. Ask your druggist for

Quantity Salvage Material Is Stolen

NORTH BAY, Ont., March 13.—(CP)—North Bay's war salvage warehouse was entered and ransacked Wednesday night by thieves who sorted out and took only the most valuable materials, police said yesterday. Coils of copper wire, bars of lead and quantities of copper and brass and baled magazines disappeared with the thieves.

tions in the Indies, they have proved their ability to expend men, ships and planes recklessly as long as they gain their objective.

The Japanese advance on Java was slowed by offensive tactics on the part of Allied ships and planes which inflicted heavy punishment in the battles of Macassar Strait and the Sea of Java, but the time gained was not sufficient to allow the delivery of sufficient American planes, particularly fighters.

The American bombers were forced to withdraw from Java for lack of fighter support. The Dutch, entirely without air protection, were overwhelmed.

The same need not prove true of northern Australia. The stream of American bombers and fighters to Australia now is well under way. That is probably why the Japanese are thrusting at the Solomon Islands, trying to jockey into position to cut the supply line from the United States. But there they are up against the U.S. Pacific fleet, which is committed to keeping the line open and already has operated effectively west of the Gilbert Islands.

PRESENT TASK

The present task in the defence of Australia is to delay Japanese occupation of Papua—the southeastern segment of New Guinea—as long as possible. Much depends on it. If the Japanese are able to overrun New Guinea as quickly as they did Java, they will be in an excellent position to invade north Australia, perhaps before the defenders are fully ready.

It is, of course, entirely possible that the Japanese would stop at New Guinea and proceed with the consolidation of the entire East Indies, which is not yet cleaned up. It is more probable, however, that they will not want to leave their southern flank exposed to attack by the big Allied force which is being built up in Australia. By taking the northern coast, they would force the Allies to operate at a disadvantage from distant bases.

Witness Tells Of Bayoneting By Jap Killers

went off to internment after he had told members of the press that the stories of atrocities were "so much propaganda."

Yesterday Viscount Kano's 26-year-old wife was turned out of a hairdresser's by the woman manager with these words: ". . . I cannot ask any girl in my service to do your hair. In saying what I feel I have to say I hope I have used more courtesy and decency than your people have shown to British women in Hong Kong."

Special bureaus have been established in the colonial office to answer inquiries about Britons in Hong Kong. Three hundred persons called, telephoned or telegraphed yesterday. There was little they could be told but each was taken care of individually.

CHOLERA, TYPHOID

There are hundreds of British and American women left in Hong Kong, civilian nurses as well as army nurses. Reports today indicate that British, Canadian and Chinese wounded have been turned out of the big hospitals to make room for Japanese. Cholera and typhoid are believed to have broken out there.

How well Britain has learned the lessons of this war is manifest by the realistic manner in which such news is received. There is no talk of protests. There is only talk of defeat—for the Japanese—and the realization that the only redress for such atrocities lies in Allied victory.

Government Seizes Swedish Newspapers Angering Germans

BERNE, March 13.—(AP)—Editions of 10 Swedish newspapers, all of which contained articles on prison conditions in German-occupied Norway, were seized by the Swedish ministry of justice yesterday, according to advices from Stockholm.

No official explanation for the action was given, but observers recalled that most of the papers involved had recently published stories which provoked sharp words in the German press.

One of the papers roused German anger last week by suggesting Sweden take the initiative in getting Finland and Norway out of the war.

Dominion Bans Manufacture Of Civilian Trucks

The new regulation, issued by J. H. Berry, motor vehicle controller, and approved by R. C. Berkinshaw, chairman of the wartime industries control board, does not apply to manufacture of busses.

Amplifying Mr. Howe's statement, Mr. Berry said the 225,000 or more trucks now in use in Canada will be ample to serve civilian needs.

"But they will be ample only if they are uesd effectively and driven and cared for properly," he said. "There is an enormous wastage of transportation facilities which can be eliminated. By the active cooperation of truck managers, empty and half-empty runs can be avoided and the maximum use of available trucks can be attained."

Mr. Berry said trucks in the hands of the dealers and not already sold will be allocated "by the dealers themselves." It would be "almost impossible" to buy one unless the truck operator could show his need was in the public interest.

Sons Tell Of Violent Death Murder Trial

proached the Bennett farm and that the accused had come to meet him with a .22 calibre rifle firmly clutched in his hands.

Then, according to the evidence of James Gordon Bennett, 16, the younger son, Bennett aimed his rifle and fired point blank at DeVitt. The youth declared that he had seen the shooting from a window in the home.

"He then dashed into the house and seizing a hammer, returned to where DeVitt lay on the ground, and clubbed him over the head repeatedly," witness said.

BITTER FEUD

Howard Dale, 18, the older Bennett boy, gave similar evidence, and revealed under examination by Crown Prosecutor John Quigg that a bitter feud had been in progress between DeVitt and Bennett, a former Kentuckian.

Evidence was also given that DeVitt had been sentenced to jail for making an attack on a member of the Bennett family and had in fact disappeared while out on bail pending an appeal from the conviction. He had been missing for nearly three and a half years, and no trace whatever was found of him until a squad of R.C.M.P. under Det. Sgt. F. A. Broadribb uncovered his body from a crude grave on the Bennett farm only three weeks ago.

Dr. John W. Macgregor, assistant pathologist at the University of Alberta, who performed a post-mortem examination, declared he had found two bullet wounds in the dead man's skull. One was in the back and the other on the right hand side. There was also evidence of a skull fracture, caused by a heavy blow, he said.

Witnesses were subjected to a strenuous cross-examination by J. R. McClure, defence counsel, who brought out that both Bennett and DeVitt had held a great contempt for each other, which gradually developed into bitter hatred.

COULDN'T SHOOT SELF

At the time of his daughter's death, Bennett is alleged to have stated that the girl could not have shot herself. "She didn't know the first thing about firearms and never had a rifle in her hands," he said.

The girl received the fatal wound only three months after she had married DeVitt. At that time, according to police, DeVitt had returned home from work and found his wife sitting on the steps of her home, mortally wounded. He is said to have rushed her to the Red Deer hospital where she made the statement on her death bed.

The hearing is continuing.

Plan Farewell To City Businessman

Plans for a farewell dinner in honor of J. F. McMullen, Canadian manager of Marshall Wells Ltd. and associates, are nearing completion according to Reg. T. Rose, executive-secretary of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. McMullen, for many years an active member of the chamber, until recently was manager of the Edmonton branch of Marshall-Wells Alberta Co, Ltd. He will assume his new and more important duties with headquarters at Winnipeg, soon after April 1.

The dinner, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, will be held at the Edmonton club, April 16.

R.C.A.F. Will Have Control Of Air Cadets

OTTAWA, March 13.—(CP)—Air Minister Power announced today that direct administration of Air Cadets in Canada—now 12,000 strong—has been assumed by the Royal Canadian Air Force. He was joined in the announcement by George B. Foster, D.F.C., president of the Air Cadet League of Canada.

"This new policy which recognizes the ever-increasing importance of Air Cadet squadrons to the Air Force, is to attain maximum uniformity and efficiency in training," said the minister.

Air Cadet League, which founded the air cadet organization last June, will continue to perform important functions, including the promotion, through provincial and local committees, of formation of new units, the publication of the magazine, "Canadian Air Cadet," the raising of financial assistance through its local and district committees for units and by providing trophies for competition between air cadet units to encourage efficiency.

Uniforms will be supplied directly to units by the Royal Canadian Air Force on a repayment basis.

Riots Against Axis Break Out Brazil Capital

By DAVID J. WILSON

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 13.—(BUP) — Anti-Axis disorders threatened in the Brazilian capital again today when crowds massed before German and Italian establishments.

Police detachments took up positions in front of the Axis firms to prevent a recurrence of yesterday's rioting.

During the demonstration yesterday several Axis establishments were almost wrecked and those who openly expressed sympathy for Germany were beaten by mobs.

"DOWN WITH GERMANY"

As police reinforcements rushed to occupy strategic intersections, shouts of "Down with Germany, up with Brazil" resounded through the streets. The demonstration followed a warning by the Rio de Janeiro police chief that such activities were prejudicial to the nation's interest.

"It's Easy to Pay the National Way"

Resolution

Grimly, in the vast silence of the ocean's white-capped spaces the Battle of the Atlantic, mostly unreported, goes furiously on. Against the Navy's iron resolution, the foeman's boasting falters and shall fail, while the doughty ships sail on to their harbours under the British hills.

Homes And More Homes

A mild winter and the early arrival of springlike weather has made building possible at a time of year when construction work in this part of the world is usually confined to the making of plans. As a result the in-between season in Edmonton has been short, house-building was continued late in the fall and is again under way. It is stated that 35 houses are now in course of erection in the city. The prospect is that the activity will spread rapidly as spring opens and that mid-summer will find the building trades very busy, possibly busier than they were last summer. A new record in house-building is not at all impossible this year, is in fact rather suggested by the increased sales of city-owned lots to intending builders.

Need, not speculation, is the driving force behind the construction campaign which began two or three years ago and shows no sign of slackening. Houses and apartments are scarce, to the point of being obtainable only with difficulty. But for control measures rentals would be phenomenal. The demand is fully up to the supply, wherefore the house-building is likely to go on at a fast pace, perhaps a faster pace than we have yet seen.

Canada Is Where Australia Was

In Australia every man from 18 years of age to 65 is under military orders. Those of suitable age and physical fitness are in the fighting forces; the others are in labor battalions, under military command, and at military rates of pay. Women are being drafted into industry to free the men for these duties.

If outside criticism is in order, it must be that Australia is late in thus going on a complete war footing. It should have done so three months ago, when the Japanese "march to the south" began. A Melbourne despatch says 200,000 persons are now employed in munitions factories in the Dominion. It is obvious that two or three times that number would be nearer the requirements—and a million none too many.

Canada is now in the position Australia was in three months ago. With the difference that the war has not yet headed definitely in our direction. But with this difference also, that if Japan is to win it must strike in this direction, for only by smashing the power of the United States could it dictate peace—and Canada is the logical base from which to launch an attack on the republic.

Is Canada going to profit by Australia's experience and take in time the measures that country is now taking to put itself in a state of full defence? This is the question with which our Government, military directors, and the public are confronted.

We may have even less time than Australia had to prepare to meet an onslaught. For the Japanese command may think it good strategy to stall on the Java front, leave Australia for future attention, and strike at once at this half-armed continent, in hope of gaining a quick decision. If Hitler has any say in the matter that is what they will probably do.

Stalin And The Bankers

So Stalin is in league with the bankers. Hitler says so. He said it in a letter to his Beer Cellar gang on the occasion of the anniversary of the founding of the Nazi order of infamy, being himself somewhere in the wilds of Russia, too busy telling his army where to retreat to foregather with his pals at the scene of the famous bomb explosion.

He plans, so he explained, to get another million, or two or three millions, of Germans killed off this spring, in order to settle up "with that conspiracy which was hatched in the banking houses of the plutocrats and extended to the vaults of the Kremlin."

Just when this unnatural alliance between the Plutocrats and the Communists was framed the Fuehrer does not say. Supposedly it must have occurred, if at all, some time before last June, for that was the month in which he suddenly double-crossed Stalin and launched his blitzkrieg at his partner in the munitions business. But that cannot be either, for has not Herr Hitler told us times without number that Germany was obliged to take up arms because it had no place in the sun, no resources for its industrial machine—nothing, that is to say, worth stealing?

The Plutocrats and the Communists, so runs the tale, joined in a conspiracy to loot Germany—which had nothing to be looted. Maybe Nazi youths can be got to believe the Communists capable of such idiocy, but hard-headed German businessmen know that isn't at all the sort of deal Plutocrats could be got to waste money on.

Whatever the manpower situation may be, Herr Hitler is apparently running short of reasons to explain to the German people why he sacrificed three or four—or six—million German soldiers in his attack on Russia. There certainly was no Plutocrat-Communist conspiracy on the 22nd of last June, when Hitler launched his attack. On the contrary, Stalin up to that time was supplying him with materials for his onslaught upon the democracies.

Riom Hears The Truth

Leon Blum, former premier of France, told his accusers at Riom some plain truths about the origin of the war. That his statement will prove to be a good defence by securing his acquittal or minimizing the punishment imposed upon him is not likely, but it will give him a high place in the esteem of people everywhere who respect truth and value courage. Everyone, none better than himself, knows that Hitler forced war upon France—and Europe—but not everyone would have the hardihood to face the court at Riom and say so.

That tribunal was not set up to make a judicial investigation of the cause of the war, nor to assess blame for the defeat of France. It was created as the instrument through which punishment could be imposed, under the guise of administering justice, upon the men who attempted to frustrate the Fuehrer's plans by arming France to defend herself. To have thus played the role of patriot is the crime for which Blum and Daladier and the others are called to answer.

If—as is pretended—the purpose was to affix blame for the position in which France now is, Weygand and Petain should be among the accused, and the names of Darlan and Laval should head the list. These omissions condemn the proceedings as nothing better than head-hunting and the "court" as nothing but a vengeance squad.

Death closed a long and distinguished career when it suddenly called Senator Dandurand. He had been in public life continuously for nearly fifty years, for forty-four years a member of the Senate. No member of the upper house was more highly esteemed by his associates, while the public will long remember the Senator particularly for his whole-hearted support of the League of Nations, in season and out. A broad-minded and highly endowed Canadian has passed on. His counsel will be missed by his colleagues in the cabinet.

1892—50 Years Ago

The Quebec provincial elections resulted in a sweeping victory for the DeBoucherville government. The house will be composed of 51 straight Conservatives, 3 independent Liberals supporting the government, and 15 Mercierites. All the DeBoucherville ministers were elected by good majorities.

The worst blizzard in years swept the northwestern states on Wednesday. The wind blew 50 miles an hour and the temperature was 40 below zero. Railways are all blocked.

Mercier, ex-premier of Quebec, has resigned his seat in the assembly and retired to private life.

1902—40 Years Ago

The text of the British-Japanese treaty of alliance is published.

Montreal: It is officially announced here that the Canadian Northern railway, which now runs from Port Arthur to Winnipeg, will be extended at once to Edmonton, and through the Yellowhead Pass into British Columbia. The Pacific terminus will be at Bute Inlet, a fine harbor, with ferry communication with Nanaimo.

Lord Kitchener reports that Boer activities are now practically confined to four districts. In the eastern Transvaal a considerable force is under General Botha. Generals Delarey and Camp are in the western section. In the north are General DeWet and ex-President Steyn. In Cape Colony the country north-west of the Cape Town-De Arr line is infested with bands of rebels.

Vichy Continues To Aid The Axis Under Secret Pact

Petain's Promises Must Be Viewed in Light of Marshal's Past Performances

By VICTOR M. BIENSTOCK
Chief of the Foreign Service of the Overseas News Agency

Marshal Petain's latest assurances to President Roosevelt that the Vichy Regime will not relinquish control or use of the French Fleet to the Axis Powers, and will give no military assistance to them, must be viewed in the light of past promises and performances by the men of Vichy.

The letter handed to American Ambassador Leahy in Vichy reaffirmed the will of the Vichy Regime "to abstain from any action, under reservation of the obligations resulting to it from the armistice agreements, which would not be in conformity with the position of neutrality in which it had been placed since June, 1940, and which it intended to maintain."

What the obligations of the French Government under the armistice agreement are, no one except the Germans and some Vichy officials know. The existence of secret clauses in the armistice agreement is admitted in Vichy and was put forward as justification for the stand taken by the Vichy Regime in permitting the German Air Force to use bases in mandated Syria for operations against the Allies in Iraq last year. There was nothing in the published text of the agreement to make the French comply with German demands there.

There is also the fact that pro-Axis elements high in the Vichy Regime interpret Vichy obligations in a very elastic manner and are ready and willing to make concessions to the Germans which only the widest and most liberal interpretations of the armistice agreement dictate.

Assurances

If, as Acting Secretary of State Welles declares, the relations between the United States and the Vichy Regime are predicated on the latter's formal assurances that the French Government "in its relations with the Axis Powers will not exceed the terms of its armistice agreements with those powers, and, in particular, will in no wise relinquish to those powers any control over or any use of French territorial possessions nor any control over nor use of the French fleet," then the United States should receive from the Vichy Regime a clear statement of its full obligations to the Axis under the armistice agreements under both published and secret clauses and the extent to which, according to the interpretation of the dominant Vichy element, the Vichy Regime is committed to the aid of the Axis Powers.

The United States today has a very serious interest in French North Africa and such potential enemy bases as Dakar. The security of the Western Hemisphere makes it imperative that these bases not be placed at the disposal of our foes. Marshal Petain's assurances to President Roosevelt, as they stand now, are no assurance at all that the Vichy Regime will not hand over Dakar and other bases to the Nazis. For, just as in the case of Syria, the Vichy Regime can explain that it was obligated to do so under the terms of the armistice agreements.

That the Vichy Regime has made sweeping concessions to the Axis powers far beyond the obligations imposed on it by the armistice agreements is conceded in informed Vichy quarters. One of France's outstanding authorities on international law, a man who was charged with legal interpretation of the armistice agreement for the Vichy Foreign Office—and a man in a position to know the full extent to which the agreements committed his country—resigned his post as juridical adviser to the regime in protest against this policy of concessions.

Exposure

The letter which Prof. Jules Basdevant sent to Marshal Petain last summer, and which the Vichy authorities unsuccessfully attempted to suppress, was an authoritative expose of the policy followed by the Vichy Regime which must be studied by everyone seeking to understand the role of Vichy France in this war and the policy Washington has adopted toward it.

In brief, Prof. Basdevant warned the old Marshal that his second-in-command, pro-Nazi Admiral Francois Darlan, was depriving France of the protection due it under international law and the rules of neutrality by following a policy which held France to be a country which had unconditionally surrendered instead of having laid down its arms in accordance with definite terms embodied in an armistice agreement.

Interpretation by the Vichy Regime of France's obligations to the Axis under the armistice agreements, this international authority declared, went far beyond those actually involved in the agreements in favor of Germany. He reminded Petain that while his Government was obliged to discharge its commitments under the Armistice scrupulously, it had the paramount duty of protecting for France what France was not obliged to yield.

This, he declared, the Government had failed to do.

Since Prof. Basdevant penned this warning to Petain last summer, there has been no change in the position of Vichy. As this jurist warned the marshal, each concession to the Reich would be followed by further demands which would be difficult to reject on the basis of the juridical precedents in previous concessions. This has proven to be the case and the Vichy Regime, in the person of Petain himself, has yielded further concessions to the Reich as a basis for "collaboration" in the new Europe.

Vichy has kept a closely guarded secret the terms of the "understandings" reached by Petain and Darlan with Hitler and Goering, at a number of meetings including that early in December at which the Vichy leaders agreed, among other concessions, to give the Axis control of the great French naval base at Toulon and the use of French African bases for supplying the Axis armies in Libya.

Military Aid

And despite the statement quoted by Mr. Welles last week that the French Government "would not . . . lend any military aid to one of the belligerents in any place in the theatre of operations", the fact remains that the Vichy Government is giving military aid to the Axis.

The Vichy Regime is permitting and, in fact, encouraging the enlistment of French citizens in both the so-called "Free Zone" and in Occupied France, for service with the German army in German uniform, on the eastern front against Russia. Marshal Petain himself has approved of this move and has encouraged Frenchmen to enlist in this legion.

Reliable reports from France indicate that the Vichy Regime is seeking to organize recruitment of Frenchment to serve under German officers to "police" the western coastal district of Occupied France, thus relieving German troops of this duty for service on the eastern front. This, too, is giving military aid to "one of the belligerents".

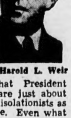
British intelligence authorities, neutral observers in North Africa and other dependable sources have revealed that French territory and bases in North Africa have been used by the Axis armies in North Africa for supply routes. French shipping has carried German technicians and supplies to North Africa. American observers have disclosed German activities in the French territories beyond the obligations publicly known to have been imposed by the armistice terms. These are facts which have to be considered in appraising Petain's latest pledge.

Dissension Is Deprecated

British Feel That Business of Fighting Is Subordinated to Criticism

By HAROLD L. WEIR

British press reports from home and abroad give the definite impression that the United Nations have practically forgotten about fighting in favor of a general free-for-all of backstabbing among themseves.



Harold L. Weir

With the exception of Russia where domestic squabbles are not in fashion, and of the Dutch who seem to be displaying complete solidarity in their suicidal struggle for national existence, this inter-Allied session of recrimination is being accompanied, according to the same press reports, by a lively series of internal stiletto parties calculated to destroy national cohesion as well as co-operation among the Allies.

All reports from the United States indicate that President Roosevelt and the British are just about as unpopular among former isolationists as the Mikado and the Japanese. Even what may actually be highly constructive of the government and the services inevitably is made to appear as mudslinging, the summed effect being that of a nation at odds with every other nation and of people who cannot stand the sight of one another.

Irresponsible

In Britain itself, the recent attacks on Prime Minister Churchill and the misfits in the higher ranks of the army have passed from a stage of legitimate insistence to a stage of irresponsibility and ordinary people are given the impression that nobody above the rank of a lance corporal in the army or a taxi driver in civilian life is either honorable or worth his wages.

Less is said of foreign powers and what is said publicly is generally favorable, but the average Britisher deeply resents the dead cats which have been slung at Britain by other allies and the dominions.

As far as domestic British criticism is concerned, it has not been forgotten by most people that two of the greatest critics among the press, the London Daily Mail and the London Daily Express were, respectively, during the days of Ethiopia, Czechoslovakia and Austria, the leading pro-Axis organ and the country's principal isolationist and "there ain't going to be any war" proponent in the critical days of 1938 and 1939.

The Dutch have kept their tempers pretty well during the desperate days of the East Indies campaign but even they have hinted, through official spokesmen and foreign correspondents, that they have been let down because the Allies did not rush greater reinforcements to Java.

Russia Silent

The Russians are playing their cards close to their chests but even in their case there have been indications of discomfiture and, of all things, disillusionment.

It has been hinted by such newspapers as the London Times that the Russians must feel hurt because they are not given a wartime agreement with Britain and the United States, guaranteeing them certain borders following the war.

There have been no outspoken complaints about allied shipments to Russia which, in the present circumstances, appear far more important than any treaty or treaties that could be signed.

The din of recriminations has been completed by natural but occasionally confusing shouts from India and Australia. As a people who have been exploited by the British for 100 years, in return for certain benefits, the Hindus could be expected to try to exploit the present situation to secure their freedom.

At the same time, it is impossible to see how the present campaign, which is accompanied by accentuation of Hindu-Moslem differences in India itself, is going to save India no matter how soon a satisfactory agreement is reached.

One slight hope is that the Japanese will be so frightened by India's internal uproar that they will regard the country as a sort of plague and stay away.

Australia

As Australia's position has grown more acutely serious its statesmen have tended to temper their outbursts against Britain and to martial the country for its own self-defence.

At one time feelings were aroused to such a pitch that people began to discuss, half seriously, the possibility that the commonwealth, at the very moment when it relied more than ever on British-American assistance, might be inclined to break away from the Empire.

While the newspapers continue to report choruses of Bronx cheers from the Allied countries, they are conspicuous for absence of similar news from Germany, Italy and Japan and—for that matter—from Russia, the only Allied country which so far has been able to achieve any victory.

Students of public morale are beginning to wonder if it may not be a case of cause and effect.

Ahoy There, Canada's Navy!

FROM THE LONDON FREE PRESS

Directly across from the editorial windows of the Free Press is H.M.C.S. Prevost, London headquarters of the Canadian Navy. Formerly it was a dirty, dilapidated building used by federal departments, a sore spot in the city which we hoped would some day become the bright and shining home of some progressive-minded business. That hope was never realized. The war came. In time the navy took over the building. Today the "ship" is a thing of pride and joy, shipshape, neat, efficient and attractive. We have gained a new and stimulating horizon.

The reason for this reference to our seafaring neighbors is more personal. Coming to the office these Spring-in-advance days we notice the windows of the ship (should it be portholes?) open; we hear petty officers on parade; we view ordinary seamen drying dishes; sometimes we catch a rich, appetizing aroma from the galley; now and then the gold oak leaves of an officer's cap catches the morning sun. We see the boys doing their morning "physical jerks" and are reminded of the same sort of thing when we were in the army and had to do knee bends and so on for the good of our health and the smirking satisfaction of a sergeant-major named Krueger—of all names.

Best of all we hear the boys sing in the evenings. Now and then we discover some coy sailorman fulfilling the long tradition of all sailors—to have a girl in every port—by casual yet purposeful introductions, to passing maidens moving officeward along the sidewalk. The maidens—so far as we have seen—enjoy the free-and-easy non-conformity of the "Matelot" and reciprocate.

For these things and because London headquarters has sent more than 1,300 officers and ratings to serve in naval vessels, we push back our chair and salute H.M.C.S. Prevost and all the stout fellows who polish brasswork, sing choruses, ogle girls "ashore" and train to go down to the sea in ships.

Ahoy there Prevost!

AXIS OFFENSIVES

Inside Story

MANCHESTER GUARDIAN

Accidentally tearing in two a treasury note the other day (writes a correspondent), I took it to the bank and asked what they could do about it. It was all very simple—just a matter of sticking together two pieces with stamp edging and signing it and the old note was exchanged for a brand-new one. But the bank manager mentioned that all such cases are not so simple. He recalled a recent instance of a man bringing in a badly torn note, of which some pieces were missing. For him the penalty was the filling up of a long list of questions. One of the most vital was "Where are the missing portions of the note?" To this he replied tersely: "Inside dog". Perhaps the authorities realized that after this succinct answer further inquiries were hopeless.

At all events the explanation was accepted and the note promptly replaced.

Anniversary

BIRMINGHAM MAIL

Among the centenaries which fall this year is that of the death of Dr. Thomas Arnold, the famous headmaster of Rugby from 1828 to 1842. It will be observed at Rugby School on June 13, the day after the actual anniversary.

One of the most famous of all schoolmasters, Thomas Arnold's fame has been proclaimed to the world through the medium of two books written by pupils of his: Dean Stanley, who wrote his life, and Thomas Hughes, the author of "Tom Brown's Schooldays".

While acknowledging the importance of imparting learning, he realized that this was only a part of education, the great aim of which should be the formation of character, and at Rugby he introduced reforms which changed the whole tenor of public schools.

Press Gallery's Cabinet

Idle Newsmen Amuse Themselves Making New Government For Canada

FROM THE OTTAWA JOURNAL

Up on Parliament Hill this week the House of Commons was holding a secret session (said to be one of the dullest sittings the House has had in years), so the Press Gallery, between games of hearts (poker and cribbage seem to have passed from the place), amused itself by drafting a new cabinet. Inasmuch as the Press Gallery knows more about cabinet ministers than all the rest of the country put together, as well it might, seeing that it sees them at work and play, watches them do their stuff from a ringside seat day in and day out, the result is interesting. Thus:

Prime Minister and Minister of External Affairs: Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King.
Deputy Prime Minister and Government Leader in the Commons: M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. House Leader.
Minister of War: Hon. C. G. Power.
Minister for the Army: Murdoch A. MacPherson, Regina.
Minister for Air: Hon. R. J. Manion.
Minister for the Navy: Howard Green, Vancouver.
Minister of Munitions: Hon. C. D. Howe.
Minister of Supply and Price Control: Donald Gordon.
Minister of Finance: Hon. J. L. Ilsley.
Minister of Justice: Hon. Louis St. Laurent.
Minister of Mines and Resources: Premier John Bracken, Manitoba.
Minister of National War Services: Hon. James G. Gardiner.
Minister of Agriculture: J. Gordon Ross, M.P., Moose Jaw.
Minister of Labor: Hon. Humphrey Mitchell.
Minister of Trade and Commerce: Hon. J. A. MacKinnon.
Secretary of State: Hon. Philippe Brais, Leader Upper House, Quebec.
Minister of Pensions and Health: Hon. Ian Mackenzie.
Minister of Fisheries: Hon. J. E. Michaud.

The odd thing about this cabinet is not that the Gallery took in M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, as Deputy Prime Minister and Government Leader in the Commons (Gallery men are not much given to party lines); it is that it dropped Col. Ralston as Minister of Defence and also Mr. Angus Macdonald as Minister for the Navy. Just why this was done is not clear to outlanders, the Gallery arriving at its conclusions by a sort of secret ballot and submitting no reasons for its nominations. It may be, of course, that as the Gallery was forming a sort of union, non-party cabinet, it thought that Nova Scotia shouldn't have more than one minister, so kept Mr. Ilsley.

Also, the Gallery had to make room somehow for three Conservatives. Having made the room, it brought in Murdo MacPherson, brought back Dr. Manion and went behind Mr. Hanson for an entirely new man, young Mr. Howard Green of Vancouver. Then, making its perhaps most spectacular appointment, it went outside Parliament and politics altogether and conscripted Donald Gordon as Minister of Supply and Price Control.

In this last, the Gallery has got something. Donald Gordon, great as an administrator and civil servant, is really being wasted outside of active democratic politics. Gordon has everything it takes to make a successful popular leader; has color, dash, nerve and verve; would be equally at home in the palace and the pit.

Clearly the Gallery likes some of the men in the present cabinet. Thus it actually promoted Mr. Charles Gavan ("Chubby") Power to be Minister for War, and it held on to Mr. Howe and Mr. Ilsley and Mr. St. Laurent, and some others.

We're afraid that Mr. King won't accept the Gallery's cabinet. Also we confess that if we had to take it as a whole, without the privilege of shuffling it a lot, we wouldn't take it either. Not even from the Gallery. Because we think it left in some men who should have been left out, and left out some others who should have been brought in. What about a man, for example, like H. R. MacMillan? What about Mr. Meighen? Also, we can think of three or four others—not all the great men of this country are in Who's Who—who would bring strength to a war cabinet.

But then, what's the use?

Red Deer Council Considering Public Rest Room And Library

RED DEER—City council this week discussed the proposed public rest room. City commissioners submitted a sketch plan for turning an existing building into a public rest room and a public library. Present quarters for the library are too small.

Cost of the building and alterations would be about $8,000, and further action was deferred.

Annual sale of Christmas seals by the Red Deer Rotary club brought in a total of $739.80, according to A. Johnstone, chairman of the seal sale committee.

Mrs. Walter Stenback was elected president of the Red Deer 13th Field Auxiliary for the coming year. Other officers are: Vice-president, Mrs. George Harvie; treasurer, Mrs. Norman Blades; secretary, Mrs. Jack Morton; buying committee, Mrs. Wm. MacFarlane, Mrs. Frank Stewart.

The past year was the busiest one in the history of the Red Deer Municipal hospital, according to annual reports presented at the final meeting of the year of the hospital board. J. M. Findlay, secretary, presented a report covering the past year's activities.

1,333 PATIENTS

During the year 1,333 patients were admitted to the hospital; births were 162, with no maternal deaths; hospital supporters increased from 1,036 to 1,144.

The auditor's report, presented by J. R. Dunham, showed a small profit on the year. Miss Martha Smith, superintendent, said the institution had a satisfactory staff.

The board expressed appreciation of the services of Chairman George H. Best, who is retiring this year.

The Red Deer detachment of the Alberta Women's Service Corps is arranging a course of lectures in air raid precautions, given here for women if there is interest enough shown. Miss Flora MacDonald is taking names of those interested.

VICTORY LOAN

Red Deer and district subscribed $176,100 in the Victory Loan campaign. The quota of $137,000 was exceeded by 28½ per cent. P. E. Graham was chairman of the organization and Mayor E. S. Hogg was unit organizer for Red Deer and district.

Members Reject Calgary's Plan Hospital Wing

Application by the City of Calgary for a charter amendment which would permit the building of a $350,500 addition to its General hospital without a reference to the ratepayers was rejected by members of the legislature, when discussing the bill in committee of the whole, Thursday.

Other minor amendments to the charter, contained in the bill, were approved for third reading, but the clause to authorize the hospital expenditure without a burgess vote was defeated by a vote of 25 to 23 of the members of the legislature. The vote was on a motion by W. Tomyn, S.C., Willingdon, that the clause be deleted.

SPACE NEEDED

Voting against the motion, or in effect for authorization to build the hospital without a ratepayers' plebiscite, were all members of the opposition and four Social Crediters, Hon. Solon E. Low, provincial treasurer; Hon. D. B. MacMillan, minister of agriculture; A. E. Fee, S.C., Sedgewick, and C. A. Reynolds, S.C., Stettler.

Cabinet ministers who voted for the motion were Premier William Aberhart, Hon. E. C. Manning, provincial secretary; Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works and Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of lands and mines.

Mayor Andrew Davison, Ind., Calgary, and other Independents who favored the charter amendment said the additional hospital space is needed immediately and that a vote would cost $2,500 and would cause delay.

Members who opposed the amendment felt the legislature is not the proper body to decide whether the money should be spent, and the people of Calgary should be given an opportunity to decide this for themselves.

BILLS APPROVED

Also approved and reported for third reading was a bill to amend the Vehicles and Highway Traffic Act, 1941. This gives authority for the provincial secretary to order that only one motor license plate need be used in 1943-44.

Two bills were given third reading—amendments to the Co-operative Associations Act and the Crop Payment (Irrigated Land Sales) Act.

Given second reading were bills amending the Chiropractic Act, the Vital Statistics Act and the Drainage Districts Act.

In the discussion on the amendment to the Calgary charter, Mayor Davison said there has been serious consideration for some time to supply much-needed additional hospital space and the hospital board had suggested that a 109-bed addition be built at a cost of $350,000. Of this amount $140,000 is available and the remainder would be raised by four-year treasury bills carrying a four per cent interest rate.

He added that the majority of Calgary people agree with the plan and he is convinced a bylaw would pass but the vote would cost $2,500 and would cause delay.

OPPOSITION TO MOVE

The only objection to the plan had come from railway and munition workers and this objection had been sufficient money is not being provided and that 250-beds-space should be added, the mayor added.

Mr. Tomyn in moving the amendment be struck out, said Calgary citizens should settle their own questions and the legislature should not be forced to decide. He added the emergent need of space had been in effect two years and the only reason Calgary did not have the space now is the lack of foresight of the Calgary council.

Mr. Fallow said he objected to the amendment entirely on principle. If the situation was sudden and serious and required immediate action, he would look on it in a different light. The people of Calgary have a right to say just what hospital facilities should be provided.

OBJECTION RAISED

Premier Aberhart said the house was not discussing whether the money should be spent and asked why the Calgary council could not hold a plebiscite and let the people decide what they want. He added he had no desire to oppose hospital facilities for the people.

If there had been no objection after the advertisement announcing the amendment, he would have supported it but since an objection was raised it now is a question entirely between the council and the people of Calgary, the premier said.

Bashaw Drive For Salvage Is Successful

BASHAW.—The salvage campaign committee has sold $350 worth of salvage so far, and on hand at present are five tons of paper, two tons of rubber, a large collection of brass, and aluminum pots and pans, and a quantity of rags.

Plans are being made to ship a car of paper in a short time.

Fighting Boston Team Beats New York Rangers, 2-1

Bruins May Beat Out Toronto Leafs

NEW YORK, March 13—(AP)—A fighting Boston Bruin team that refused to crack under pressure defeated the first-place New York Rangers 2-1 Thursday night and remained a possibility to crowd Toronto Maple Leafe out of second place in the National Hockey League final standing.

Sharpshooter Roy Conacher, playing himself out of the protracted slump that hit when his play-making centre, Bill Cowley, was hurt in January, scored both Boston goals. Cowley did not get back into action last night despite some advance predictions that he would.

For the Rangers, the goal that stretched their non-shutout streak to an even 100 games was scored by Bryan Hextall, league-leading point getter of the season.

The game left the struggle for the league's first three places wide open. The Rangers are three points ahead of Toronto, but the Leafs have three games to play, against Boston, Americans and Canadiens, while Rangers have but one, against Chicago. On the other hand the Bruins are but a single point behind Toronto, with two games to play, against the Leafs and the Americans.

Club Curling At Red Deer: Lloyd Plays

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

RED DEER, March 13—J. C. Knight's rink defeated Doug. Gray's men to win the final of the Club Cup competition in curling at the Red Deer Curling Club. The competition was conducted in two sections, Gray finishing at the top of Section "A" with six wins and one loss and Knight's rink winning Section "B" with seven victories and one defeat. Seventeen rinks took part. The winning rink, made up entirely of C.P.R. men was: J. C. Knight, skip; W. W. Overand, C. Peterson and Tom Rodway. Gray's rink was: Doug. Gray, skip; R. M. Beatty, R. V. Traunt and M. Bowie.

LLOYDMINSTER, March 13—Big winners in Lloydminster's recent bonspiel, the J. D. Hamilton rink of Lloydminster which annexed the Grand Challenge and the Alberta Hotel competition, both open events, and the W. Padavill rink of Lashburn, Sask., which won the Merchants and the Citizens' competitions, met in a matched game at the Lloydminster rink. The Lloydminster club representatives upheld their bonspiel reputation of winning all their games by turning back the eastern invaders 19-9.

During the recent bonspiel the Padavill rink of Lashburn played six games in one day, two of them being 13 enders, and won every game. Starting at 8 a.m., they did not throw the last rock of the last game till 1:14 a.m. the following morning.

RED DEER, March 13—Red Deer Juniors counted a 6-3 win over Rimbey Juniors in an exhibition hockey game at the Arena.

Lineups—Rimbey: Neal, Clater Sloan, Matthews, Thorvalson, Thomas, McTighe, Shaw, Odenbach, Thorvalson. Red Deer: Rasmussen, Rodway, Silverman, Currie, Thompson, Murray, Sharman, Gibson, Crawford, McArthur. Officials: Sid Sturk and Glen Murphy, Red Deer.

Saskatchewan To Settle Its Own Senior Squabble

REGINA, March 13—(CP)—A wire vote of Saskatchewan Senior Hockey League executives is being taken to settle the row over playoff dates between Saskatoon Quakers and Moose Jaw Millers.

The battle reached that stage late Thursday night after hours of long distance telephone calls and indications are that the decision will be final and no appeal will be made to the C.A.H.A.

The league members will be asked to vote on whether Saskatoon should play in Moose Jaw on Saturday night in the third game of the series, or whether the game should be held back until Monday night in Saskatoon, as requested by the Quakers.

Quakers lead the best-of-five series with one win and a tie and the C.A.H. playoff schedule, as announced by Frank Sargent at Port Arthur, calls for a Saskatchewan winner to be ready to play on March 21.

DiMaggio Signs Yankee Contract Reported $42,000

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 13—(AP)—Joe Dimaggio came to terms with New York Yankees last night in an hour-long conference with President Ed Barrow. Although the salary was not announced, it was believed to be $42,000.

Both men emerged smiling and Barrow said: "We reached a compromise. That's all I can say."

When pressed for some detail, however, he added that the figure was a little over the $40,000 offer made to Dimaggio last week and described at that time as final.

Dimaggio said:

"I came expecting to have a battle but it was very friendly and satisfactory and I am very happy."

The big centrefielder, who set an all-time record of hitting in 56 consecutive games last year and was voted the most valuable player in the American League, said he would report today to Manager Joe McCarthy and would be ready to play or do anything else Joe asked.

He said he weighed 196 pounds and felt "grand."

Dimaggio's salary will be $5,000 more than he earned last year and will be the second largest ever paid by the Yankees—more than Lou Gehrig or any other player except Babe Ruth ever received from the club. This will be Dimaggio's seventh season with the Yankees.

Barrow, who arrived in the Yankee camp today, succeeded in signing four other holdouts before he left for New York. The only one left, third baseman Red Rolfe, informed the club this week that he suffered a recurrence of an illness and was going from his home in New Hampshire to Toledo, O., to seek treatment before signing a contract.

Commercial Hi Plays 40-40 Tie With Starlets

Commercial high school girls and Starlets played a 40-40 basketball tie at McDougal gym on Thursday night.

May Pringle with 12 and Dorothy Bolander and Eilleen Crouch with 10 each were top scorers for the Starlets, while Peggy Colville contributed 12, Connie Strachan 11 and Dorothy Edwards 10 for the Commercials.

Starlets took a 12-7 lead in the first quarter and outscored their opponents 9-3 in the third, while Commercials were in front 16-11 in the second quarter and 14-8 in the fourth.

Four of the girls participating in last night's game are members of both teams, Aileen Hudson, Norma Johnson, Connie Strachan and Barbara Hay, but Clare Hollingsworth, who coaches both clubs divided the quartette, the first two lining up with the Starlets.

Commercials had seven fouls and Starlets five.

TULSA, Okla., March 13—(AP)—Tulsa Oilers defeated Minneapolis Millers 3-2 in the American Hockey Association here Thursday night. Tulsa marksmen were Sonny Wakeford, Ken Grivel and Ralph Blyth. Hal Dewey and Melnyk got the Millers' goals.

Very Confusing To Trail Boss

CALGARY, March 13—(CP)—Eliminated from the A.B.C. Senior Amateur Hockey League, Trail Smoke Eaters and Kimberley Dynamiters are scheduled to open a best of three game semi-final British Columbia hockey championship series at the Smelter City Friday night.

This information was given to the Albertan Thursday night by Jim Little, secretary and business manager of the Trail club which left for home last night.

"Early this morning I was advised by long distance from Trail that Smoke Eaters had to be home to engage Dynamiters Friday night," stated Mr. Little. "It is supposed to be a semi-final series with the winner advancing into the B.C. finals against the Navy club of Victoria. Seems like so much piffle to me.

"Smoke Eaters were eliminated fairly and squarely by Stampeders in the A.B.C. league semi-finals and in my opinion they are not entitled to a second chance to advance into Allan Cup competition. But if the C.A.H.A. is determined that Kimberley is to be given this chance, I guess Trail has no alternative but to go ahead and demonstrate that Smoke Easters are the best senior hockey club in British Columbia. And don't be surprised if we are back in Calgary to play Stampeders in the western finals of the Allan cup. And wouldn't that be a real one?"

Empress Tourney Into Semi-Finals

VICTORIA, March 13—Calgary, Toronto, Seattle and Anacortes are represented in the semi-finals of the men's championship for the Sir Edward Beatty trophy in the 14th annual Empress golf tournament today at the Colwood course.

From the province of Ontario there will be W. H. Sears, who scored a close victory over Dr. D. H. Houston, Seattle, in Thursday's eliminations, while the Calgary shot-maker left in the running is E. W. Tait, a youngster of not more than 22 summers. Tait put out Peter Paulsen, Astoria, Oregon, on the 17th green, 2 and 1.

Big Ralph Whaley, Seattle, blasted the hopes of the trophy coming to Victoria by disposing of Al Falk, home club member, 2 and 1, after one of the most interesting matches of the day. Whaley played steady golf all the way and gave away several strokes at the same time Frank Wright, Anacortes, Washington, moved into the semis by downing the tournament favorite, Lee Steil, Seattle, on the eighteenth green.

Steil, a low handycapper, won the Beatty trophy and also the open event a few years ago at the Oak Bay links and has packed home many pieces of silverware from this annual event.

Buffalo Hockey Fans Ride Referee

BUFFALO, N.Y., March 13—(AP)—Indianapolis Capitals moved into first place in the western division of the American Hockey League last night by blanking Buffalo Bisons 2-0.

The crowd littered the ice with newspapers, pennies and peanuts after referee Rabbit McVeigh had called a 10-minute misconduct on Jack Toupin three minutes before the finish. Toupin had protested a faceoff ruling.

The barrage continued intermittently for 20 minutes. McVeigh declared the game forfeited at one stage, but Manager Tiny Thompson of the Bisons succeeded in halting the barrage by an appeal over the public address system.

Dick Behling and Joe Sawyer got the goals.

PROVIDENCE 6-5

PROVIDENCE, R.I., March 13—(AP)—After failing to win in 14 consecutive games and losing their chance for a play-off berth in the eastern division of the American Hockey League, Providence Reds last night defeated Washington Lions 6-5.

Dominoes After B.C. Hoop Title

VICTORIA, March 13—(CP)—Victoria Dominoes bounced back into contention for the British Columbia Senior "A" basketball championship Thursday when Manager Dave Nicol, who has bowed his team out of the playoffs with Vancouver Tookes because of a dispute over referees, said the best-of-seven series would open as scheduled tonight.

Nicol objected to the referees named by the British Columbia Amateur Basketball Association and ignored that group's ultimatum that he accept the arbiters last night or default to Tookes. Late yesterday, however, Nicol accepted a compromise arrangement advanced by Charles McLachlan of Vancouver, president of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association, calling for one or possibly two American referees.

CHICAGO, March 13—(AP)—Chicago Black Hawks learned yesterday that Cully Dahlstrom, of Minneapolis, Minn., veteran forward, is lost for the Stanley Cup playoffs. Dahlstrom was injured Feb. 10 and has played only a few minutes since then.

Trader Rickey Again Puts Over Fast Deal On Giants

By JACK GUENTHER

NEW YORK, March 13.—(BUP)—Along the cross-roads and whistle stops of baseball's citrus circuit the wags are fitting a new set of lyrics to one of the more popular tunes of the day. The number has been dedicated to the New York Giants and it goes something like this—"Branch Rickey did it before and now he has done it again."

To date, the Giants themselves haven't joined in the chorus. They have been too busy with chiropractors, bone setters and muscle specialists. It seems that a few months ago they paid Rickey $50,000 for John Mize and now they find that the St. Louis Cardinal curse has lost none of its potency. Big Jawn has come down with the miseries.

SHOULDER ON BUM

The trouble centers in a shoulder tendon and it will be several weeks before the wags will know how their new song will fare on the hit parade. That is because it will take that long to determine whether Mize will be part of the Giants' hit parade. Everyone is worried but Rickey. He has the $50,000 and a brand new scalp for his trophy room.

Rickey, a sort of rich man's David Harum, is the man who first came up with the Cardinal curse, to wit: when St. Louis sells 'em they are through. Rickey isn't pretty and he has no glamor, but when it comes to pulling wool over a sugar daddy's eye he can give tips to the smartest chorus girl who ever wore diamond bracelets and a mink coat.

The list of deals he has whipped up in the past two decades would bring blushes of shame to the cheeks of the James boys. Rickey is honest, of course, and if he weren't you would think his reputation would be enough of a warning. But apparently baseball buyers refuse to learn to beware of Rickey bearing gifts. As a Lorelei, he is terrific and deadly.

THIS WAS HIS BEST

His greatest coup is a legend now. That was his sale of Dizzy Dean to Chicago for $185,000, Clyde Shoun, Curt Davis and Tuck Stainback. As a one-man club amplifying system, Dean was a whizz. But as a luxury he was expensive. The 16 games he managed to win for Chicago in three years cost $12,000 each, not counting his substantial salary.

Then there was the sale of Ducky Medwick to Brooklyn for $130,000 and three players. The Ducky-Wucky one wasn't exactly a lemon, but neither was he a fine, juicy orange. A first year man on his own team, Pete Reiser, out-hit him by 25 points last season while he dropped 20 points below his own life batting record. Obviously, his hits came high.

There are many other examples of the peculiar Rickey genius. He sold John Rizzo to Pittsburgh for $40,000. Rizzo had one good year and was tossed to the Phils. In 1936 he swapped Rip Collins and Tarzan Parmelee to the Cubs for Lon Warneke. The first gents went to the minors and Warneke has averaged 15 triumphs a year for St. Louis.

Consider this vicious circle. In 1930 Rickey gave Fred Frankhouse and Bill Sherdel to Boston for Burleigh Grimes. Grimes clinched the 1931 flag for St. Louis and won two world series games. A year later he was exchanged for Hack Wilson. Wilson was sold to Brooklyn for $40,000. On each spin of the wheel, Rickey and the Cardinals prospered.

OTHER WHITE ELEPHANTS

A few other elephants I remember Rickey unloading were Tom Winsett, Fiddler Bill McGee, Bob Bowman and Joe Orengo. Of course, the old master has been out-smarted at times himself. He let Mickey Owen slip away, he thought Paul Derringer was washed up years age and he guessed very wrong on Burgess Whitehead, who won a pennant for New York.

But over a period of time Rickey and Sam Breadon have done better than all right. They are masters at spotting the shadows which coming events cast before. They have a nose for impeding declines on the part of their players and they waste no time tossing them on the market. But they always do it subtly. And the customers unfailingly bite.

Mize began to taper off last year. Rickey knew that. He couldn't have known that the shoulder tendon would pop. That must be attributed to the St. Louis curse, the catalyzing effect of Bill Terry's personality or just bad luck. Call it what you will, if Rickey ever decides to quit baseball I'll sign him for life. We'll open a pawn shop, and just watch us grow.

Ottawa Flyers Oust Hull Volants

OTTAWA, March 13 — (CP) — Royal Canadian Air Force Flyers qualified for the Ottawa and District Amateur Hockey Association finals Thursday night by defeating Hull Volants, 9-5, to win the Ottawa Senior City League's best-of-five series with four straight victories.

Flyers, first service team in history to win the Ottawa senior championship, will meet either Cornwall Colts or Perth Crescents in a best-of-three playoff for the district championship. The winner will advance into the dominion playdowns.

Boston's former Kraut line scored three of the R.C.A.F. goals, Bauer, Dumart and Schmidt getting one each. Campbell had two goals and Miller, Snell, McNichol and Hellyer one apiece. Myre, Guzzo, Roach, Mentzel and Blondin tallied for Hull.

—V—

Girls' Basketball

The first game of the series for the Alf Blyth trophy starts tonight at the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium in the City Girls' Basketball League with the Spruce Grove team meeting St. Mary's at 8 o'clock and Bissell Hornets against the Collegiates at 9 o'clock. These will be sudden death games with the winners later playing in the final.

Maple Leafs Go To Saskatchewan

PORT ARTHUR, March 13—(CP)—Frank Sargent, vice-president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, announced here Thursday night that the Saskatchewan senior hockey champions, either Saskatoon Quakers or Moose Jaw Millers, will meet a British Columbia military team in the Allan cup playdowns, the winner to enter the western final.

Champion of the Alberta-British Columbia Senior League, either Calgary Stampeders or Lethbridge Maple Leafs, will meet the Thunder Bay-Manitoba champions in the other senior semi-final bracket. Port Arthur Bear Cats, former dominion titlists, and Winnipeg Navy Chippawas will begin their inter-provincial best-of-five series at Port Arthur March 14.

In the western junior playdowns Fort William Hurricanes will meet the Manitoba champions, yet to be decided, in one semi-final bracket. Edmonton Maple Leafs, Alberta champions, will play either Regina Abbots, Saskatoon Quaker Juniors or Flin Flon Bombers in the other semi-final bracket, all games to be played in Saskatchewan.

All series are best-of-five affairs with the finals in each division scheduled to begin April 2 and end not later than April 11.

Sargent said British Columbia has been asked to stage a series including the Navy team at Victoria to determine the provincial senior championship. The Navy team, he added, is headed by Surgeon-Lieut. M. Currie, president of last season's Allan cup winners, Regina Rangers.

He also stated that two B.C. senior teams, Trail and Kimberley, have been eliminated in the A.B.C. league playoffs.

SENIOR SCHEDULE

The senior interprovincial schedule:

A—Manitoba vs. Thunder Bay, March 14, 16 and 18, all games in Thunder Bay.

B-1—British Columbia vs. Saskatchewan, March 21, 23, 25, 28 and 30, all games in Saskatchewan.

B-2—Winner of A vs. Alberta, March 21, 23, 25, 28 and 30, all games in Alberta.

C—If B.C. and Alberta enter finals, all games will be played in Alberta. If Alberta and Saskatchewan enter finals, first two games will be played in Alberta, the rest in Saskatchewan. If Thunder Bay, Port Arthur Bear Cats, enter the finals the lakehead will be the venue of the third and remaining games. A Manitoba victory in a semi-final will result in all games being played in either Saskatchewan or Alberta, excepting possibly one game.

The junior semi-final games are scheduled for March 21, 23, 25, 28 and 30 and the finals April 2, 4, 6, 9 and 11. If Saskatchewan and Manitoba meet in the final the first two games will be played in Manitoba and the remainder in Saskatchewan providing the Alberta-Saskatchewan semi-final series is well supported. All games in the junior final, however, may be played in Manitoba, Sargent said.

High Speed Is Blamed By Jury In Fatal Crash

Excessive speed was blamed by a coroner's jury as one of the causes contributing to the auto crash at Kingsway and 118 avenue on Feb. 27 last in which Tony Senick, C.N.R. roundhouse employee, of 12534 125 street, received injuries which resulted in his death at the Royal Alexandra hospital four days later, on March 3.

The jury which listened to more than six hours of testimony during the two days of the inquest, returned the verdict at 6 p.m. Thursday after only ten minutes' deliberation. The jurors found that Senick died from lobar pneumonia which developed as a direct result of wounds he received in the auto accident.

IS ARRAIGNED

Immediately before the inquest resumed in the city police court before Dr. E. A. Braithwaite, chief provincial coroner, John B. M. Griffith, 10041 110 street, driver of the "death car," who is facing charges of manslaughter and dangerous driving, was arraigned before Magistrate A. I. Millar, K.C., and again adjourned to March 26.

Although he was not called as a witness at the probe, Griffith sat throughout the entire hearing and did not leave the building until after the jury had brought in its verdict.

Two passengers who were in the car when it failed to make the turning at Kingsway and 118 avenue and careened with terrific force into a guard rail at the side of the road were placed on the stand by G. W. Auxier, counsel for the accused. They were Victor McGee, 12741 113A street, and James Stevenson, 12971 118 street.

SWINGS WIDE

McGee, who placed the speed of Griffith's car at between 35 and 40 miles an hour, testified that the driver was forced to swing wide to avoid hiting another car which was proceeding west on 118 avenue and starting to turn on to Kingsway. He claimed that the other auto took "lots of room" and that consequently Griffith was unable to make the turn and crashed into the guard rail.

Stevenson, who sat in the front seat next to the driver, however, told the jury that he had seen no such car and had no recollection of it.

It was suggested that Senick, probably losing his head, when he saw the car was going to crash, might have opened the side door and leaped to the road, receiving his injuries in this manner. None of the witnesses could throw any definite light on this contention.

McGee, who was seated next to the dead man, declared that he had seen him holding firmly to the back of the seat or the door handle just seconds before the crash occurred. "I threw my arm over my face as the car hit the post. I was knocked to the side and then to the floor and when I looked again Senick was gone."

MAY HAVE JUMPED

The witness stated that he did not think the force of the crash was sufficient to force open the car door and expressed the opinion that Senick had actually jumped out.

He was challenged on this point by Fred Jackson, representing the Senick interest at the inquest. "You're a Griffith witness—a friend of Griffith, aren't you," he asked. "You've been to Mr. Auxier's office to give your version, and you've talked it over, haven't you," he demanded. Witness admitted that this was so.

In reply Mr. Auxier contended that the crown had neglected to call either McGee or Stevenson as witness at the inquiry, and that it was only through his efforts that the jury was able to hear their testimony.

"GOING FULL SPEED"

Harry Ryzuk, 16, 12848 127 street, took the stand as an eye witness to the crash. He declared that he had been cycling about a block from the scene, and attracted by the speed of Griffith's car, had looked back to see what was going to take place. "Why did you look back," inquired Clifton G. Purvis, crown prosecutor. "Because he was going 'full speed' and I thought sure something was going to happen", replied the youth.

James Stevenson was also unable to throw any light on the mystery of whether or not Senick had jumped from the car or was thrown out. "My head went through the windshield and broke it," he said, "and I didn't know what had happened to Senick until I saw him lying on the road."

Thomas Bibaud, driver of the van, which took the injured man to the hospital, stated that he had approached the scene of the accident from the same direction as Griffith's car, but that he did not recall any car, which might have come from the opposite direction, passing him. "I wouldn't care to commit myself," he stated under examination by Mr. Purvis in regard to testimony given by McGee that the other car had caused Griffith to swing wide at the corner.

SKID MARKS

It was also suggested that some of the skid marks allegedly made by the death car, had actually been caused by a second crash at the same point later in the day. This was refuted by Sgt. Maj. Alex. Riddell, head of the city police traffic squad. "No other accidents were reported to police that day or the next day," he said.

The jurors were William Munroe (foreman), R. J. Talbot, J. Hay, George Bagnall, David Duncan and Francis Taylor.

Red Cross Society Says Women Unacceptable As Blood Donors

You can fool some of the people some of the time but no "Miss" or "Mrs." can talk her way out of being of "the weaker sex" in one regard. Whether she is slim and wiry, or whether she is a "big girl now" of the husky out door type, a woman is a poor specimen as a blood donor, according to the prolonged experience of the Red Cross.

Inquiries were made, Friday, as to why women are not being accepted in the blood-donors campaign in Edmonton, and some fool-proof reasons were presented.

HOW THEY REACT

Slim women, it seems, re-act to donation of blood in the same way as do boys of the 18-years-old group, that is that only one transfusion of 300 c.c.'s per year is possible. Boys who are under 21 are rejected by the Red Cross, because they are still growing, and in the circumstances it is difficult to reproduce the blood without unfortunate results.

Husky women, the sad story goes on, are all right, but the trouble is that their veins are so small and are "covered with lots of flesh." The difficulty of finding the veins slows up the process of taking the blood and fewer numbers can therefore be handled.

From experience even husky women can only give blood twice a year, as a class, but the vein condition makes them less suitable.

So, civilian women, who are anxious to help the war effort will have to exclude the donations of blood from their fields of patriotic activities.

Black Cat At Police Court Friday, 13th

"Oh, death, where is thy sting?"

That, in all probability, was the thought that ran through the minds of many law breakers as they stepped into city police court for trial today, of all days—Friday, the 13th.

And the 13th omen of ill-luck wasn't all that awaited them, for proudly prancing the corridors of the police station, with tail on high, was pussy in person—and just as black as they come.

She was friendly, too, and tried her best to ruffle her fur against reluctant trouser legs and sheer, silk hose.

Those awaiting trial, however, would have none of her and until court was called to order, there was some pretty nifty "leg work" in the hallway outside the hall of justice.

Communities Feature Debate On Curfew Law

Debate on the enforcement of the curfew law in Edmonton featured the meeting of the Federation of Community Leagues on Thursday evening in the Civic Block.

It was decided that no action would be taken, as the children attended community rinks at night were under adequate supervision, and most parents were to be depended upon to keep their youngsters home in the evenings.

Speakers included H. S. Reynolds of the city police force, who asked for volunteer policemen in future blackout tests, and A. W. Allbright, representative of the St. John Ambulance association.

Mrs. W. T. Rice reported that four contestants for the title of Queen of the Federation had been nominated. They are Maureen Kelly of Strathcona, Ruth McDowell of Eastwood, Marjory Coward of Alberta Avenue, and Peggy Bryant of Riverdale.

The queen contest is to be held on Friday, March 20.

Plans also were made for the annual banquet to be held in Corona hotel on Friday, March 27. Mrs. L. L. Misener is in charge of arrangements and will be assisted by Mrs. Rice.

President J. B. Gillies presided at the meeting.

Blood Bank Arranges For Staff Members

Volunteers who have agreed to man, for one month, the three enrolment depots to be opened Monday in connection with the Red Cross blood bank campaign were announced Friday by Robert Muir, secretary-manager of the Edmonton branch of the society.

At the depot in the King Edward hotel building, during the coming month, will be members of the Edmonton Lions Club and their wives. Dr. Herman Wood is chairman in charge of arrangements and will be assisted by J. Williams.

In charge of the Banque Canadienne Nationale depot will be members of the Women's Canadian Club, during the coming month. Mrs. T. Cox, president of the club, is supervising arrangements.

WOMEN ON DUTY

Mrs. Douglas Thomson has organized a group of women to man the depot in the Garneau theatre for a month.

The drive, which opens Monday, will continue until the hoped-for 4,000 male donors between the ages of 21 and 50 are obtained. This enrolment will allow for rotations of 40 donors per week, the blood to be processed at the special clinic to be established at the university, and then to be shipped to the Connaught Laboratories in Toronto, whence it will go to England.

In emergency cases in the province, the blood can be used for transfusions for civilian use as well.

Half-Mast Flags Are Tribute Here To Late Senator

Flags on public buildings in Edmonton were being flown at half-mast in tribute to the late Rt. Hon. Raoul Dandurand, member of the senate since 1898, who died Wednesday.

A request that the flags be lowered on Friday and Saturday was received by Lieutenant-Governor J. C. Bowen from the secretary of state in Ottawa.

Funeral of the late senator and League of Nations delegate will be held Saturday in Montreal.

A request was made that a representative of the Alberta government attend, but this will not be possible as there is no representative in the east available to be present.

REVISION OF FEDERAL PENSIONS ACT

Dominion-Provincial Conference At Ottawa Next Year

Legislature Informed Of Proposed Plan By Provincial Treasurer

It is expected that a Dominion-provincial conference will be called at Ottawa next year to study plans for revision of the federal Pensions Act, Hon. Solon E. Low, provincial treasurer, told members of the legislature Thursday.

Keating receiving calls over the short wave radio at police headquarters; William Gerrie, veteran mail carrier, on Jasper avenue deluged with mail destined for the Regional Gas Board; Archie McCallum on 96 street telling his latest "story" to a friend; Charlie Croft at the main post office switching his conversation from curling to golf; Frank Law entering the McLeod block; Tim Aitken entering the North Side post office, and Joe Cameron doing the same thing on the South Side.

Mr. Low said he had received notification Thursday by telegram from Ottawa that changes will be made in the Pension Act to permit the province to pay a supplementary allowance of $5 a month to old age and blind pensioners without deductions being made from the maximum amount a pensioner may receive.

The Dominion-provincial conference likely will be held because of representations from various provinces for the change to make possible the increase without federal deductions, the minister said.

FIRST READING

The average $5 monthly increase to old age and blind pensioners in Alberta will begin April 1 and the bill to authorize this was given first reading Wednesday.

Mr. Low made the announcement yesterday as the house dealt with treasury department estimates in committee of supply. A total of $3,653,266 for the department was approved.

At adjournment the house had just reached the estimate of $307,120 for treasury branches, an increase of $51,770 over the 1941-42 fiscal year. Prolonged discussion on this item is expected in view of the statements of opposition members that they intend to ask many questions about operation of these branches.

Estimates approved yesterday brought to about $16,600,000 approved so far for the 1942-43 year of the

Former City Man Dies At Winnipeg

In charge of construction of most of the buildings in the Edmonton exhibition grounds, and an oldtimer in Edmonton, David Stewart, 75, died in Winnipeg Thursday.

Mr. Stewart had been interested in horses all his life. He was an importer of race horses from Kentucky and had been superintendent of the Edmonton race track for a number of years, before going to Winnipeg in 1922, to take charge of the Whittier race track there.

Some years ago, he hurt his leg while loading horses, and an amputation became necessary recently.

Mr. Stewart, who was born in Guelph, Ont., is survived by a son William in Victoria.

Funeral services will be held on Monday at 2 p.m. at Howard and McBride's chapel, Rev. J. MacBeth Miller officiating. Interment will be in the Edmonton cemetery.

Commerce Chamber Asks Postponement

A request that permanent amendments to the Unemployment Insurance Act be deferred till such a time that searching investigations of the act are completed, was wired to the Unemployment Insurance Advisory Committee at Montreal by the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, Friday.

The advisory committee, which met in Montreal Friday morning, is considering amendments to the act, and the Edmonton Chamber feels that permanent amendments at the present time may prove inadequate due to "uncertainties of conditions in the country as affected by the war," Mr. Rose stated.

THE QUESTION

Shocking atrocities of Japanese troops on the helpless prisoners at Hong Kong is kindling the fires of a fierce anger among civilized peoples the world over. Do you think disclosures concerning these horrors will bring a speedy quickening of the war effort in Canada?

THE ANSWERS

JAMES ALLAN, telephone worker: I don't know what the general reaction to the Hong Kong atrocities will be in Canada. But I know what they should be. All Canadians must know now that there can be no patched up peace settlement with governments that permit their soldiers to act in such a bestial manner.

ALF RYMER, book store operator: There can be only one answer to such unspeakable brutality: We must make very sure that such acts are punished in a manner that men in all parts of the world will never dare repeat such crimes. Canadians will act in an appropriate manner, I feel certain.

CAL DAVIS, lumber man: We must see that this kind of thing is never repeated. Japan has to learn that an Empire founded on oppression of the weak and defenceless is an empire that cannot endure. And Canadians will help to teach this lesson to the Japanese.

Salvation Army Officer Known As "Hallelujah Postman" Here

Thursday night saw the return of the "Hallelujah Postman" to Edmonton, when Major Richard Shaw, newly-appointed district social officer for the Salvation Army in Edmonton, arrived from Vancouver to take over his new post.

Major Shaw was a mail carrier in Edmonton in 1911, and a candidate for the Salvation Army at the same time, and was known to the late postmaster, Alex. May, and fellow-workers as the "Hallelujah Postman," or "Dick, the Devil Driver." Mr. May was the father of Capt. W. R. "Wop" May, D.F.C., O.B.E., manager of No. 2, A.O.S., R.C.A.F.

"OLD CONTEMPTIBLES"

Major Shaw was also a member of the "Old Contemptibles." When the 1914-18 war broke out, he was called up as an Imperial Reservist, and saw service at Mons and throughout the war.

On returning to Canada, he served at many posts in the Salvation Army in western Canada, and from 1928 to 1932 was in charge of Alberta public relations of the organization with headquarters in Calgary. For the past 10 years he has been with the Vancouver public relations branch.

Maj. Shaw was accompanied to the city by his wife and three daughters.

He succeeds Maj. E. T. Waterston, former district social officer, who has been transferred to Toronto.

Getting Around

with

Jack DeLong

R.C.A.F. officers and army men who were at the C.P.R. station Thursday to welcome a trainload of United States Army engineers, heading for Dawson Creek, were highly enthusiastic over the success of the brief reception. They predicted the little show, with the R.C.A.F. band playing a rather stellar role, would stimulate recruiting considerably.

At that there was intense drama packed into the unrehearsed episode of the troops atop the moving flat cars standing rigidly at the salute as the band played The Star Spangled Banner. Welcoming Canadian Army and Air force officers also stood at the salute.

Scattered throughout the crowd were many airmen, with U.S.A. on the shoulders of their uniforms.

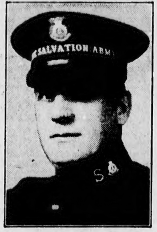
Coming Here



Lt.-Col. Wallace Bunton, territorial prison secretary of the Salvation Army for Canada, Alaska, Newfoundland and Bermuda, who will arrive in Edmonton on Friday night, to take part in a service in the S. A. Citadel, 102 street, on Saturday evening. At the gathering, which will serve as a welcome to Major and Mrs. Richard Shaw of Vancouver, and Adjutant and Mrs. William Gibson of Saskatoon, Colonel Bunton will speak on "The Lights and Shadows of the Criminal World". For the past 36 years an officer of the "Army," he had done most of his work in prisons, penitentiaries, reformatories and police courts.

Salvation Army Adjutant Arrives

Adjutant William Gibson, Salvation Army officer, formerly of Saskatoon, arrived in Edmonton on Thursday to replace Adjutant B. Dumerton who has been transferred to Regina.

He will be in charge of the public relations department of the "Army" in Edmonton, handling all liaison work. Adjt. Gibson, who is a native of Winnipeg, has been with the army for the past 15 years, serving in Saskatchewan chiefly. This is his first visit here.

The officer was accompanied to the city by Mrs. Gibson and their two sons.

Cause Residents To Exercise Care

Friday the Thirteenth!

To many persons this is just another day. But to those who are just the least bit superstitious it can be a day on which the skies might fall or other dire calamity occur.

And as most humans are inclined to a pet superstition, this Friday is therefore a day on which to walk warily to avoid the jinx of bad luck.

There should be no tempting of fate by walking under a ladder. Any foolhardiness of this sort will surely be followed by a liberal coating of paint from a carelessly tipped paint pot.

If you met a red headed woman first thing on Friday morning, you should have gone back to bed for the day, but on a Friday the Thirteenth it's dynamite. Men married to red heads are exempted by force of circumstances.

Then if it had been your misfortune when you stepped out in the brisk sunshine to walk to work and a black cat crossed your path it would be well to tie your fingers in the traditional cross, and if possible to cross your toes. The latter may be a little uncomfortable but it will be added insurance against the fate that awaits any person meeting a black cat the first thing on Friday the Thirteenth.

For many, there is a certain relief that Friday the Thirteenth does not coincide with the first appearance of the new moon. To see a new moon over the left shoulder on Friday the Thirteenth would be a combination of ill luck that could only be remedied by the most drastic action.

So get your luck charms out, walk carefully and keep your fingers crossed. Console yourself with the fact that it might be worse. There is only one more such Friday to be endured this year—Friday, Nov. 13.

'Lenny's' Girl Friend To Get Bulletin Copy

We can call him "Lenny", because the censor will not permit newspapers to give the names of personnel of United States forces passing through Edmonton.

But "Lenny" is a live-wire public relations man for the company of army engineers that passed through Edmonton Thursday for the north.

"Do you think you could see that my girl friend in Topeka, Kansas, gets a copy of The Bulletin with the story of our arrival in Edmonton in it?" Cpl. "Lenny" asked. The Bulletin reporter assured "Lenny" the job was practically done.

"TOUGH BREAK"

"You see, we were to have been married in a few days. Then I get sent to the north here with only a few hours warning. It sure is a tough break, but this job has got to be done and nothing can interfere," explained the corporal.

"But I'd like to make sure she gets a paper telling that I'm getting along fine," Lenny explained.

The corporal said he was a shoe salesman before the war and had often visited Montreal and other eastern Canadian cities but this is his first trip to the west.

He is head of the company entertainment committee.

Well, the little girl back in Topeka will know when she reads these lines that "Lenny" is missing her plenty, but he'll be back to finish another job that was postponed because of this present job.

Minister of municipal affairs, Hon. Lucien Maynard, K.C., who is a patient in the General hospital suffering a severe cold, was reported in improved condition Friday. He is not expected to return to the legislature until next week.

W. N. Morrison and P. W. Pratt of Lacombe were in Edmonton Thursday to attend the monthly meeting and dinner of the Edmonton Shrine Club. Noble J. H. Wildman is the new president of the Edmonton Shrine Club.

First case of diphtheria this year was reported in Edmonton, according to Dr. G. M. Little, medical health officer. The victim of this dread disease is an 18-month-old North Edmonton boy. He is seriously ill.

Elmer E. Roper, president of the Edmonton branch of the Canadian Red Cross, left Friday for Calgary to attend a meeting of the executive committee of the Alberta division of the society. Included in the meeting agenda will be discussion of plans relative to the plasma processing plant to be established here for handling blood donations.

To attend a conference in Ottawa on March 16, three Alberta youth training officials have left the city. They are Dr. G. Fred McNally, chairman of the Dominion-provincial youth training council for Alberta; J. H. Ross, Calgary, provincial supervisor of youth training and Murdoch MacKinnon, representative of the federal labor department.

J. H. Budd of Edmonton was among Alberta graduates in a class of officers graduating with the rank of Second Lieutenant at the Gordon Head Officers' Training Centre, Victoria, on Friday. Maj.-Gen. W. A. Griesbach, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., V.D., V.C., inspector-general of western forces in the active army, presented diplomas and addressed the graduates.

Preliminary hearing of Mike Checknita, Chipman farmer, on a charge of carnal knowledge involving a girl under 13 years of age, opened before Magistrate Millar in city police court Friday, when evidence was given by the juvenile, whom a doctor stated was an expectant mother. Checknita is also charged with contributing to the delinquency of a juvenile.

Two former residents of Salmon Arm, B.C., were each fined $5 and costs by Magistrate Millar in police court Friday on charges of failing to notify national registration authorities of a change in their addresses. In default of payment 10-day jail terms were imposed. The accused, Hortense Pilon and August W. Haupt, pleaded guilty to the charges but contended that they were only waiting to establish a permanent address in Edmonton before making the required changes.

Meatless Meals Can Be Sturdy, Well-Balanced

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

Meatless meals can be nutritionally balanced, economical and interesting. Here are some recipes to prove it.

SCALLOPED LIMA BEANS

(Serves 4 to 6)

One and one-half cups dried lima beans, 3 hard-cooked eggs, ¼ cup chopped pimiento, 1 cup grated cheese, 2 tablespoons chopped onion, 4 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons flour, 2 cups milk, salt and pepper.

Cover beans with cold water soak overnight or for several hours and cook until tender in boiling, salted water. Drain. Place half the beans in a baking dish, cover with sliced hard-cooked eggs, and sprinkle with pimiento and cheese. Cook onion in butter for a few minutes, stir in flour, add milk, cook until thick. Season with salt and pepper. Pour half the sauce over beans and eggs, cover with beans, add remaining sauce, and top with grated cheese. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for about half an hour, or until the mixture is thoroughly heated and cheese melted and slightly browned.

SAVORY RICE

(Serves 4 to 6)

One-quarter cup butter, 1 medium-sized onion, 3 tablespoons tomato paste, ½ cup water, No. 2 can (2½ cups) tomatoes, ½ teaspoon black pepper, 1 bay leaf, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 cup rice, 1 cup grated cheese.

Melt butter, add thinly sliced onion, cook until delicately browned. Add tomato paste mixed with water, canned tomatoes and seasonings, cook slowly for 45 minutes. Cook rice in boiling salted water, drain, add to tomato mixture. Turn into a baking dish, cover with cheese, and bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.), until cheese is well browned.

NOODLE RING

(Serves 4 to 6)

One package noodles, 1½ tablespoons butter, 1½ tablespoons flour, 1½ cups milk, 1½ teaspoons salt, pepper, mace, 2 eggs.

Cook noodles in boiling salted water 10 minutes and drain. Make a white sauce of butter, flour and milk. Add salt, a dash of pepper and a pinch of mace or nutmeg. Add beaten eggs and combine with noodles. Turn into buttered ring mold, set in pan of hot water, and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for about 40 minutes or until firm. Turn out onto a hot platter and fill center with creamed fish, eggs, or vegetables.

Sunday's Menu

BREAKFAST — Grapefruit, French toast (enriched bread) syrup, coffee, milk.

DINNER — Tomato juice, roast beef, baked potatoes, buttered beets, green salad, vanilla ice cream, coffee, milk.

SUPPER — Noodle ring with creamed fish, hard rolls, stewed fruit, cup cakes, tea, milk.

Becomes President

NEW YORK, March 13.—(AP)—Forty-nine years ago on Thursday John Goldhammer went to work for the Commercial Cable Company as an office boy. Yesterday the directors of the company elected him president. For the last 20 years he acted as vice-president of the company.

Debunker

Psychologists who have studied the reliability of "hunches" say that they are very unreliable guides to follow. The inner feelings we have about things are largely determined by emotional conditioning in the past, and we react favorably or unfavorably according to past emotions connected with any given subject. Our hunches are often contrary to reason. They are emotional, not rational, and thus subject to serious error on all sides. We seem to remember the hunches that proved right and to forget the many that turned out to be completely wrong, and thus the belief in them survives.

Your Baby And Mine

A child's good posture results not only from good nourishment during infancy and childhood but from good health habits. Good posture is only secondarily a matter of exercise. However, mothers whose children have curved backs and wing-like shoulder blades leap to the conclusion that they must have ben remiss in giving them exercises. They now think some apparatus is in order to hold the back forcibly in a straight position.

I have little faith in such mechanical means of achieving good posture. What is needed is a strong set of muscles which will support the backbone and those muscles should develop if the child is supplied with the proper growth foods and plays in the hearty and natural manner of childhood.

The small baby's reluctance to sit up should not be attributed to lack of support. It is the baby's recognition that his back is not strong enough to bear such strain and so he should be allowed to lie down until he wants to sit up.

IMPROVE DIET

Efforts should be put into improving the diet with the assurance that when he is ready and able he will struggle to sit up with all the energy he possesses. Strong babies make their own opportunities and cannot be denied the exercise their muscles demand.

There are always ways to discourage good posture to which parents should be alert. Large pillows which elevate the child's head out of line with his spine, are undesirable. Up to the fifth year or beyond the child has no need for a pillow, even a small one.

To allow a child to sleep on a weak springed bed which sags in the middle, or on a lumpy, uneven mattress is an encouragement to poor posture. So many hours of the 24 are spent in bed that a parent must be certain the bed invites a good posture and not a poor one.

When the child is weak or has been ill it is detrimental to good posture to carry a load of books on one hip and it is unwise to allow a child to play with any toy which puts one set of muscles into constant use at the expense of the others. A wagon propelled by one foot only is an illustration of this.

Artificial exercises to correct poor posture would be valuable but poor posture itself should not develop if the child has every opportunity for normal, vigorous, healthy play.

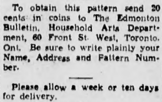
What To Do



Many of us turn our attention to the golf links at this time of the year, and a few gentle reminders on "course courtesy" may be helpful.

When your opponent is teeing off, remember to remain quiet, don't move about or allow your caddie to do so.

Don't carry your personal worries to the golf club. Go out and play the best game you can. If you concentrate on your game you'll find you are able to forget your worries for a while.

Help your opponent find a lost ball. Allow people who are faster players to go through if they wish. Don't bewail your misfortune on poor shots, and don't fail to congratulate your opponent on good shots.

Keep your score accurately and don't bully your caddie. Don't "rub it in" when your opponent plays poorly by trying to get a return match the next day.

Be a good sport and you will find plenty of other golf enthusiasts for a good game.

Home Service

Have you a case of puppy love? Is your brand-new dog little and wet-nosed with innocent, sleepy eyes?

Then he needs all the love you can give him if it takes the form of right care.

Puppies are as helpless as babies. They, too, get sick, often fatally, from wrong food or exposure. They, too, are naughty as a result of wrong training.

So now, in winter, see that your pupply has warm but well-ventilated quarters and warm (but not hot) food. Also give raw or cooked meat daily, as well as milk, from the time he's three weeks old.

In housebreaking, take him outside five minutes to an hour after he eats. But not in places where dogs with distemper have been!

Such simple care is about all a little dog needs to keep him happy. But at four months you'll want to start training him to obey commands.

Ou 32-page booklet shows how to train a dog to be obedient and do clever tricks. Tells food dogs may eat; how to housebreak them, groom them. Gives symptoms and treatment of common dog ailments, including distemper; also how many ailments may be avoided.

The gross value of oil commodities produced on Canadian farms in 1941 is estimated at $1,375,066,000—highest since 1929—compared with $1,259,377,000 in 1940.

Dorothy Dix Says:

Poets and novelists have taught us that the perfect marriage is one in which the husband and wife are fused into one personality. It is an ideal impossible of realization, because men are men and women are women, and even love cannot work the miracle of making them think alike, or feel alike, or see things from the same point of view. Their sex, training desires, purposes in life have made every man and woman a separate entity long before they meet those who become their mates.

Dorothy Dix

Yet, I doubt if anything is more responsible for what we call the "disappointment" in marriage than the widespread belief that the ideal union is one in which husbands and wives are duplicates who have the same thoughts and tastes in everything from politics to pie.

Worse still, another catch in this theory is that both of them want husband-and-wife-should-be-one to be the one. The husband thinks that because he is the titular head of the house that his wife should have no ideas of her own whatever, no individual tastes or thoughts or desires. The wife is equally certain that her husband should enjoy the things she enjoys, want to go wherever she wants to go, and share all of her pet peeves and prejudices.

As a matter of fact, real love does not demand that a husband and wife shall be one. It is big enough and honest enough to recognize that they are two and to grant to each the individual right to be himself or herself, without molestation or going through the painful process of being made over to fit another's pattern of life, than which nothing is more humiliating or wearing on the nerves.

Why a man can't let his wife belong to clubs if she enjoys them, why he can't let her wear a do-funny hat if she thinks she looks ravishing in one; why he can't let her go to beauty shops and come home dripping with red paint if it makes her feel young and glamorous; why if conceding her these privileges would make her happy and contented, nobody knows.

Nor does anybody know why a wife risks the chance of sending her husband off to the Other Woman by always raising a row about his playing golf or going fishing, or listening to the radio at night, or having his horrid friends, who smoke vile pipes and scatter ashes on the floor, come and sit up half the night talking with him.

But they do. And the ironic thing about it is that in trying to be one they so often become two, because about the time a wife thinks she has gotten her non-musical husband inured to symphony concerts and a husband assumes the right to buy his wife's clothes, the poor victims of oneness rise up and chuck their marriage certificates in the fire and make a break for freedom.

The moral of all of which is: It can't be done. Husbands and wives are separate individuals and we have to take them that way, or leave them. DOROTHY DIX.

PATRIOTIC FLOWER ARRANGEMENTS

Fresh flowers in red, white and blue make inspiring decorations for any table or mantlepiece. One arrangement of red and white carnations or gladioli arranged to form a V has blue cornflowers for the dot and dash motif to finish the color scheme and carry a cheering note of victory. If you are one of those who has a far distant beau and receives flowers by wire you might give them an extra touch of glamor by decorating the arrangement with flags. Another way to add a patriotic touch to home atmosphere is to place your flowers in red and white striped wall brackets.

RECTAL SORENESS AND PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY RELIEVED

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from Merrick Drug Stores or any druggist and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.

War Workers Receive Thanks For Clothing Gifts Sent To Britain

TWELVE members of a war workers' group in Robertson United church, working in affiliation with the Salvation Army in Edmonton, are doing a tangible amount of knitting and sewing for civilians in bombed areas in Great Britain. Boxes of warm clothing to withstand the cold and replace clothing lost in air raids, have found their way to many men, women and children in Britain from this little group.

Packed with each article of clothing and in each box, have gone the best wishes to those people in the front line in Britain, to tell them that there are those who care and stand by them in their hour of trial.

Mrs. C. E. Stewart is director.

Letters of thanks have been received by this little group, and two have been passed on to show the good being done by "bundles for Britain" from war workers in Edmonton.

Excerpts from these letters appear below. One was sent from Annie Baker, a worker in a Salvation Army mission in London, and is dated from Surrey, England. The other letter is from H. Mynn, Hoadly Road, Cambridge. Both are addressed to Mrs. Stewart and are loaned by Mrs. L. Ursaki, wife of Brig. Ursaki, Salvation Army, Edmonton.

From the first letter the following excerpts are printed: "This week we have received from the Salvation Army a sack of clothing and warm comforts for use among our poor and needy in Bermondsey, London, and on one of these was your name and address and I felt I must write to you.

"Our mission lies in the midst of dockland and has been a rare target for air raids. Some of our women have been bombed three times. Our own loved mission was utterly destroyed by enemy action—not two bricks left standing together. Another mission in Bermondsey offered us the use of their hall for our women's meeting, so we are glad of the opportunity to meet again week after week, and look forward with hope to the time when once again we shall have our own mission.

PEOPLE VERY POOR

"Our district is one of the most crowded in London, and the people are very, very poor. Oh, how these women have suffered in these days of war! They truly have stood in the front line of the battle. I have stood with them in the ruins of what was once "home", have seen the tears and heard the sighs of aching hearts. I have helped pack the barrow or the pram with bits of home which were left, and watched them as wearily they have trudged off to find somewhere else to live. Yet these very women face up to all the struggle and hardship and their confidence is in God, that He shall bring a brighter and better day. At night they must sleep in the shelters. I knew many of them were not warm enough now the cold nights are with us, and have been trying to get warm covers and cushions for shelter use and useful cosy clothing, and when I saw your gift and your name on it, I felt you must know how truly you were God's silent messenger of hope and cheer to these very poor and needy folk."

"DEAR KIND FRIENDS"

The other letter, in part, reads: "Dear Kind Friends: I have just received a parcel of woollen knitted goods with a slip inside stating that the parcel had been sent by the ladies of War Group Circle 7, Edmonton. Thank you so much for this box full of really useful articles. I am delighted with them, and I am quite sure our children will be more than delighted to wear them.

"I could have cried from sheer joy, at receiving such a welcome gift. You know it is so very good of you Canadian women to knit and sew for our children and may God bless you for helping us to try and keep so many little children warm and tidy in this our very trying time. May you be spared some of the experiences that we have had to contend with during this past two years.

FOR CHILDREN

"My daughter has recently had a lot of children drafted in from the East coast. They have been getting it pretty badly there lately, and some of these poor little things had only what they stood upright in, and some of that not much good sometimes, so we have been very busy trying to tidy them up a bit. That nice little pair of brown socks I shall give to a pretty little girl who does not seem blessed with much of this world's goods. These small children seem just bewildered being dragged out of their homes, and away from all their people, but they generally settle down pretty comfortably. Everyone is sorry for them all. Again thanking you all for your work in contributing that lovely parcel of warm things."

Little Theatre To Present Play Easter Season

TRULY in the spirit of Easter, is the play, "Family Portrait", chosen by the Edmonton Little Theatre as their major production of the year.

Of this play, one city clergyman has said "it ought to be presented to the public every Good Friday."

Reverent in its approach, "Family Portrait" tells its story in terms of an ordinary family which acts and speaks as we do today. It presents a simple, eloquent and reverent picture of the family of Jesus.

Under the direction of Miss Eva O. Howard, the play will be presented to the Edmonton public in the Masonic Temple on Friday and Saturday, April 10 and 11.

Principal parts are taken by Mrs. Margaret Hutton Potts, Miss Gwen Seller, Mrs. W. J. Dick, Mrs. C. Christie and Mrs. Allan McDonald.

Everything is now in readiness for Men's Night, to be held Monday evening in the Oddfellow's Hall, 103 street, when the Sussex Concert Party under the direction of Mrs. M. Gutteridge, will present "We Can Take It". Mrs. F. Higgins and committee are in charge of refreshments for this affair.

Writer Declares WAAF's Eager For Equal Service With R.A.F.

By RUSSELL LANDSTROM

LONDON, March 13.—(AP)—If many W.A.A.F.'s had their way they'd enter immediately into full comradely partnership with the R.A.F.

These members of the Women's Auxiliary Air Force would like to be on some of those potent sweeps as full-fledged fighting fliers over enemy coasts, without sex distinction of any kind.

"But isn't that going a bit far?" asks a man willing to acknowledge all that women have done in wartime, but balking at the mention of their actual combat duty.

"How would you like to pick up a communique some morning and read—'From all these operations eight blondes returned safely'?"

"Women elsewhere have done jobs just as dangerous," the WAAF'S retort.

Apparently there is little likelihood that British women will be sent into an air fight. Only a few WAAF'S ever get into the air at all.

As officers they are permitted to fly as passengers while on duty, but they do no piloting themselves. Women mechanics overhaul damaged planes, but are not allowed to go up on test flights. Now they're clamoring to do so.

Another department of WAAF activities where the members prove their extraordinary worth is that of balloon operations. Though the job demands excellent bodily fitness, the greatest strain is on the nerves and mind.

Commenting especially on the work of balloon crews, WAAF Squadron Officer Felicity Hanbury said: "It is much easier to be brave than to be bored. Yet we've never heard one complaint—in the branch where we'd be most likely to hear complaints.

"We've learned that women have a greater gift than men for occupying their time, for competing with boredom.

"They take full advantage of educational and cultural facilities. They preserve their femininity and good spirits in countless interesting and subtle ways.

Early Morning Fire Destroys Building

Fire of undetermined origin which broke out at 3:05 a.m. completely destroyed a large quantity to tools, painting supplies, a bicycle and tricycle in a storage shed at the rear of the home of Alfonse Heine, 8560 84 avenue.

The flames had a firm grip on the building by the time apparatus from Hall No. 6 arrived, and all firemen could do was prevent the blaze from spreading to the main house.

Only a small portion of the loss is covered by insurance, officials stated.

Edmonton Man Certainly Has Ill-Luck Run

It was a "tough break" for Kornel Petrachuk of Edmonton.

Thursday he met two friends with a "crock" and being good fellows they invited: "Have a drink."

"Sure," said Petrachuk and took a firm hold on the bottle.

Before he even had time to uncork it, however, the long arm of the law reached out, and Petrachuk was on his way to the lockup.

In police court Friday he bewailed the fact that he was out the drink—and $20 and costs besides, or 30 days in jail.

Magistrate Millar assessed the fine on charge of illegal possession of liquor.

Acreage Claims Payment Pending

About 5,000 claims of farmers who have applied for assistance under the acreage reduction bonus plan, have had their claims held up, W. C. Barrie, director in charge of prairie farm assistance under three Dominion acts, stated Thursday.

Mr. Barrie stated that total payments to Alberta farmers under the bonus plans amounts to nearly $14,000,000, with $8,403,812 reaching the farmers' pockets under the acreage reduction plan and the balance under the Prairie Farm Assistance Act and the Prairie Farm Income Act.

CLAIMS HELD UP

There were about 6,000 claims held up because the farmers had not qualified for the bonus, Mr. Barrie said. Most of these were in the special areas section and in other parts of Southern Alberta.

More than 1,000 such claims had been adjusted during the past week, leaving 5,000 still to be adjusted.

TENDER FOR SUPPLY AND INSTALLATION OF STEAM HEATING SYSTEMS FOR ADDITIONAL HANGARS, No. 36 SERVICE FLYING TRAINING SCHOOL, PENHOLD, ALBERTA.

SEALED TENDERS, enclosed in envelope marked "Tender No. 19-P7-22—Steam Heating Systems, No. 36 S.F.T.S., Penhold, Alberta," and addressed to the Secretary, Department of Munitions and Supply, Ottawa, Ontario, will be received until 5:00 P.M. (EDST), March 31st, 1942.

Tenders will not be considered unless made on the forms supplied by the Department, and in accordance with the conditions set forth therein. These forms, together with the plans and specifications and form of contract, are on exhibition at the offices of the Officer Commanding, No. 4 Air Command, Hudson's Bay Building, 1st Street, Calgary, Alberta, and at the offices of the Department of Munitions and Supply, Ottawa, Ontario, at which offices the plans and specifications may be obtained upon the deposit of $25.00 in the form of a certified cheque, made payable to the Receiver General of Canada. This deposit will be remitted when the plans and specifications are returned in good condition.

Each tender must be accompanied by a certified cheque on a chartered bank in Canada, payable to the Receiver General of Canada, or Bearer Bonds as specified in the form of tender for ten per cent (10%) of the amount of the tender.

The cheque or bonds of the successful tenderer will be forfeited should he decline to enter into a contract for the work, or should he fail after accepting the contract to complete same in accordance with the plans and specifications.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

New Conference On Taxation Is Seen By Low

total for all departments of $22,000,000 in the budget. Estimates and bills are expected to keep the house in session most of next week.

PENSION ESTIMATES

Estimates approved Thursday included $55,720 for pensions for the blind, $2,560,000 for old age pensioners and $600,000 for the proposed $5 increase. There are about 10,300 old age pensioners in Alberta.

Replying to a question by George MacLachlan, Ind., Pembina, about assistance given persons making applications for pensions, the provincial treasurer said his department gives every possible assistance and promised to check a case mentioned by Mr. MacLachlan where three years elapsed before the application was completed.

Mr. MacLachlan said he had not suggested in any way that the staff was discourteous but they are unable to do certain things and are prevented by dominion regulations. Mr. Low said the pensioner is obliged to supply proof of age and provincial employees cannot do this for the pensioner.

E. O. Duke, S.C., Pincher Creek-Crows Nest, rose to say he thought it should be known throughout the province that a man 69 years, nine months, old can make application for the pension payable when he is 70.

YEARLY INCOME

When asked by Alfred Speakman, Independent group leader, Mr. Low said the federal government supplies 75 per cent of the cost of pensions and the province can share part of the 25 per cent balance with the municipalities.

The provincial treasurer added federal regulations are that the total income allowed a pensioner is $365 a year and if the pensioner gets a higher income, the pension is not paid.

Mr. Speakman remarked he believed many complaints about old age pensions are not justified and suggested these might be eliminated if the province made known the limited scope of its rights in such matters.

The average $5 monthly increase will apply to all pensioners, Mr. Low told Hugh John Macdonald, Lib., Edmonton.

INCOME TAX BRANCH

The house approved $47,360 for the income tax branch, a reduction of $9,600 compared with the 1941-42 year.

Mr. Low told the house provincial income tax arrears total about $250,000. Under the tax transfer agreement through which corporation and income tax fields are transferred to the federal government for the duration of the war, all arrears collected are to be given the Dominion government and will be returned when the agreement expires.

Mr. Duggan asked whether the $9,600 reduction would be the entire saving and Mr. Low said it is not certain how long it will take the staff to finish off all business, but it is expected this will be completed within the year and there might be a larger saving.

Mr. Speakman mentioned when the appropriation for the Alberta Liquor Control Act came up that he had heard reports that much liquor was being used contrary to regulations and said liquor was carried "on the hip" and consumed in restaurants and cafes.

He suggested this might be curbed by amending the clause covering the rights of a guardian to supply liquor to a minor by inserting the word "legal" before guardian. There was no comment but Mr. Low appeared to make a notation of the suggestion.

Highway Traffic Patrol Effective

Results of the intensified R.C.M.P. highway patrol was reflected in police court Thursday afternoon, when Magistrate H. L. Hawe, K.C., dealt with the smallest docket of the year. Usually between 30 and 40 motorists are arraigned each week on a variety of charges, but Thursday only 11 cases were listed for trial.

Convictions were registered in all cases and fines totalling $65 were imposed, with an additional $27.50 being collected in court costs.

The charges, all of which were prosecuted by Cpl. James Muir, of the traffic squad, were for minor infractions such as inadequate equipment on trucks, defective headlamps or poor brakes.

They stood rigidly at attention. Civilians stood with bared heads.

And there was no cold formality in this ceremony.

Deep in every person present was the thrill of kinship with the men from south of the 49th parallel of latitude. These were not Allies from a foreign country, joined in temporary and convenient alliance. These were full partners joining in the great task of defending the North American way of life.

Hollywood could not have planned a setting so packed wth drama.

The biggest officer in any man's army was busy checking up on the troops. He must have been fully six feet six inches tall and he was by no means slender.

After a few of the boys "missed" the train at Moose Jaw, he was taking no chances.

The officer commanding the company of engineers said he didn't blame the boys much for missing the train.

"Your train crews up here in Canada sure save their breath. They never yell 'All aboard!' very loudly when they start the train. We didn't get much warning at some of the places."

A high tribute was paid to Alberta weather by several of the troops. They declared it was "far colder" in Kansas when they left than it was in Edmonton. They had been expecting bitter cold. Now they are getting the idea people used to spoof them about the climate in Canada.

ESCAPE TO ADVENTURE

Out To Find A Purpose For Living, Judy Ranier, A Beautiful Society Girl, Finds Instead a rendezvous with murder--and Love

CHAPTER I

MAYBE there were other towns in the United States as desolate as Lost Mesa, New Mexico. But, right that minute, Judy Ranier doubted it.

She stood disconsolately on the platform of the drab, red painted depot, and watched the train which had deposited her there, disappear down the shining ribbon of track. At Santa Fe they'd told her the train made no regular stops at Lost Mesa. She could understand why, now.

Judy smiled petulantly, watching the train, now only a speck in the distance.

It was as though the train, too, wanted to get rid of her just as quickly as it could.

Twelve hours before when she had stood defiantly facing her father back in the living room of the big stone mansion on Chicago's North Shore drive that had been the home of the Raniers for three generations, the name of Lost Mesa had possessed a romantic sound, had seemed almost like a refuge.

Lost Mesa—why the name sounded like a lovely valley ringed by snow topped mountains with a charming green, irrigated city sprawling in its emerald green.

Yes, back in Chicago the name Lost Mesa had sounded delightful. And Judy's coming here was brought about by a strange and so far unexplained encounter with a girl in the LaSalle Street station.

The strange girl's baggage had borne the simple name, Rosa Dirkey, Lost Mesa, New Mexico.

Daughter Of Wealth

Judith Ranier, at 22, had enjoyed many of the good things of life. But she appreciated her own opinion very much and with considerable spirit rebelled at the well-ordered luxurious life her successful father planned for her. Her escape from all of it led—to love and adventure.

That girl had certainly been rude, but Judy had quickly forgotten the incident of meeting her. Even the name of the romantic sounding town, Lost Mesa, had slipped from her mind until later that night as she faced her father. It was then that Lost Mesa had suddenly popped into her mind as a refuge from her trouble.

NOT A REFUGE

Judith stood taking its bleakness in. The town was typical of thousands of such towns scattered over the United States. The center of interest was the railway station. A block long platform ran alongside the double row of tracks. A lean-to part of the station bore a sign, "Express," over the door.

The half dozen shops and stores that made up the commercial section of Lost Mesa huddled in a discouraged row on one side of the tracks, along with a dozen or more average appearing houses.

On the other side of the tracks were a filling station, a tourist camp and a few more houses; these more humble than the ones on the more commercial side.

In travels by air and land that had taken her from the east to the west coast and from Canada into Mexico, Judith had glimpsed such towns before, and many times. But she'd never really seen one before. She realized that now.

MISTAKE

She stood gazing at Lost Mesa disconsolately. Yes, coming here had been a mistake.

Well, there was only one thing to do now; talk to the station man who had put her bag on the small push wagon that stood by the door. He'd know what train could get her out of here and how soon.

Fortunately she had money left, not much but surely enough to carry her from Lost Mesa back to Santa Fe. In Santa Fe there were people she knew, one of them a sorority sister. Yes it was as easy as that. She'd merely have to give up this wild idea of hers, at least temporarily.

Having arrived at this saving idea, Judith turned from watching the train, now a mere speck in the distance of the valley which harbored Lost Mesa.

She shrugged her shoulders. Well, here ended the first episode of her rebellion, but her spirit was not chastened, not at all. Having thrown her disconsolate thoughts away from her she appeared exactly what she was, a spirited 22-year-old girl who appreciated her own opinion very much and who had in those brief years enjoyed a great many of the good things of life.

She had the shapely firm, young body that even the lines of a plain, mannish cut tweed suit could not hide. Her legs were lovely and long and supple, her eyes blue and the cloud of her dark curly hair under her chic hat had a burnished green hue about it like the plumage of a raven.

SOPHISTICATION

She carried her straight square little shoulders very erect and the sophistication and poise of her bearing would have made any person look twice as she passed.

Certainly the young man who sat at the wheel of the big convertible looked twice as he brought his car to a quick stop right alongside the station platform. "Oh, there you are," he said, and then decided quickly that the pretty girl who looked at him coldly considered that a fresh salutation.

"Yes?" she snubbed, and turned away as though the action finished a sentence which might have sounded like this: "Oh, yes, indeed, and here I go!"

"Wait a minute, please," the young man begged, "aren't you the—"

Judith turned again but now there was a hint of a smile in the coldness of her face. "No, I am not the girl you met at the Twombley dance, I didn't room with your sister in college, and where I have been all of your life really isn't essential, or is it?"

AMUSEMENT

The young man had got his astonishingly long legs out of the car now, had swung off his hat and stood grinning down at her in real amusement.

Judith was a tall girl, five foot six, but this broad shouldered young fellow fairly towered over her. 'He must be all of six foot two," she thought, startled, "and a cow puncher. No, not a cow puncher certainly not of the regulation 'dude ranch' type.

He carried his six foot two inches quite nonchalantly. He had broad shoulders and the flannel sport shirt that opened at the throat and joined onto a pair of slacks and eventually a pair of loafer shoes.

Never had such shabby outing clothes seemed so utterly distinctive before. The man held his broad-brimmed hat in his hand.

If it had been possible to close the conversation right then and there Judith would have closed it, but it wasn't quite possible. The young giant was speaking. He said, "My name is Peter Burke. I suppose you're the young woman from the employment agency?"

The phrase riveted Judy's attention. The employment agency! Well, certainly if any person needed to come from an employment agency and be right then on her way to take a job, that person certainly should be Judy Ranier.

But her mind couldn't do so quick a hurdle. "From the employment agency?" she asked a bit stupidly.

The young man seemed surprised. "Yes, from Santa Fe. Mrs. Dirkey telephoned to Santa Fe this morning."

Judy nodded still not quite understanding. "Why, yes, I came from Santa Fe." That was the literal truth, too. She didn't add that she had come from Chicago to Santa Fe by plane that very morning, and from Santa Fe to, of all places in the world, Lost Mesa, New Mexico, that very afternoon.

"Well, then," the unpredictable Mr. Burke said, "Why don't we get started?"

HEAVEN-SENT

"Yes—why don't we?" The fact was easing into Judy's mind that right here, with a strange Mrs. Dirkey, was the heaven-sent employment she had longed for.

Without further ado, then, they got the one bag Judy had brought along with her. The station agent was loquacious. He evidently knew the young man. He said, "How is Mr. Dirkey today, Pete?"

"Not so good." Pete had helped his companion into the convertible and stowed her bag in the back seat. "He seems to get weaker every day. Doesn't have any too good a heart, I guess."

The station agent nodded, "Too bad, too bad, Charley Dirkey is the last man on earth you'd think would get took that way. He ain't old, either, not more'n sixty, is he?"

BEST REGARDS

The station agent spat reflectively and successfully at a crack in the sidewalk. "Well, give Charley my best regards, tell him all the boys are thinking of him."

"O. K.," Pete said, and the big new convertible slid smoothly into action.

They had left Lost Mesa; they were driving 60 miles an hour along a road smooth as ribbon before either of them spoke another word.

Judy hadn't spoken because her mind was a riot of emotion. Fate certainly had taken a hand at her life in a hurry. Where in the world was she going? What in the world would she do when she got there?

Pete hadn't spoken because his mind, too, was in a whirl. This was an extraordinarily beautiful girl to be sent out by an employment agency, stylish and sophisticated, too. That bag of hers was the real McCoy. And every line of her body, every bit of her clothing betokened luxury and ease.

MOST BEAUTIFUL

Yes, she certainly was a queer girl. He decided hastily that she was also quite the most beautiful young female he had seen in all the years of his life up to now—28 of them that had taken him to practically every country on the globe and back again, whole heartedly and fancy free.

But he ought to say something, he reflected. Not to talk was being stupid. He couldn't have realized the bombshell then that he threw into the girl's confused mind at his chance remark. He'd merely said, "You'll find Mr. Dirkey a very fine patient."

"Patient?" Judy was startled to say the least. "Did you say patient?"

"Patient, that's what I said. You are a nurse, aren't you?"

"Why—why, yes—sorta."

"Oh," Pete seemed relieved, "I understood Mrs. Dirkey to say she intended to employ a practical nurse."

The word "practical" seemed to give Pete cause for glee. He laughed aloud.

"What seems to be so funny about me being a nurse, practical or otherwise?" Judy demanded.

"The word 'practical' just didn't seem to fit such an ornamental person," Pete grinned. "Anyway you'll like Mr. Dirkey."

Judy fell silent. "Like Mr. Dirkey?" Suddenly that name rang a bell in her mind just as the name Lost Mesa had. "Rosa Dirkey, Lost Mesa, New Mexico." Well, if this wasn't the long arm of coincidence.

The girl she'd had an unpleasant experience with in the LaSalle Street depot in Chicago less than twenty-four hours ago probably was a relative of the same Mr. Dirkey whom she was supposed to nurse. The world is a small place after all, Judy thought ironically.

She ventured a question, "The Dirkeys have a daughter—Rosa?"

Pete seemed surprised, "Why, yes. You know her?"

"I've just heard of her," Judy parried. "Is she at home?"

"No. She left a couple of days ago. Going east for a few weeks. She doesn't get along with her stepfather very well."

"But her name is Dirkey—the same as his?"

"Yes, her mother asked Rosa to use the name of her stepfather, Mr. Charles Dirkey, the man who's going to be your patient. You see — Well, perhaps I shouldn't be gossiping about your future employers."

"Go on," Judith said, "give me a bit of the lowdown."

After all, this situation wasn't too serious. True, she had followed the impulse to go along and accept whatever employment offered at the Dirkey place. She hadn't realized it would be nursing a sick person when she'd had no experience of any kind at the job, but, after all, it would be easy enough to say the work was not pleasing.

She could get out of Lost Mesa somehow. Maybe the good looking young giant who drove the convertible would take her.

MET HER IN EAST

"Well, there isn't very much to say," Pete was explaining. "Mr. Dirkey, my uncle, met the present Mrs. Dirkey in the east four years ago. Mrs. Dirkey was Berthe Werner then, very handsome, too. I don't believe that my uncle would ever have fallen for her, though, he'd withstood feminine charms for more than fifty years, by that time.

"But Mrs. Werner, she was a widow with this one child, Rosa, was a persistent person. She was wise to the fact that Uncle Charley owned some forty thousand good old New Mexican acres of land and that the cattle on a dozen hills belonged to him and Berthe Werner was not one to neglect feathering her own nest and providing for her daughter, Rosa.

"So Berthe and Rosa practically just moved in on Uncle Charles. Mrs. Werner has been Mrs. Dirkey for almost a year now and she and Uncle Charley are as convincing a pair of turtle doves as it's ever been my privilege to meet.

"Rosa, though, doesn't get along with either of them very well and she spends most of her time away from the ranch. Living there is a bit easier when she's gone, I guess."

"You live with your uncle?"

BEST SELLERS

"Not I," Peter said, "not during the regime of the Werners, certainly, even though I am his favorite nephew and my mother was his only sister. Uncle Charles is a good egg and I like to be with him, but not under the same roof with the Werners. I've got a little place of my own up in the Jemez mountain region."

"You raise cattle, too?"

"Rather shall we say I try to write best sellers?" Pete grinned.

Air Training In Canada Produces Best Of Pilots

NEW YORK, March 13.—(CP)—Air Vice-Marshal Robert Leckie, in charge of pilot training in Canada under the Commonwealth Air Training Plan, arrived here yesterday by Clipper from London en route to Ottawa.

In a two-month visit to Britain, Vice-Marshal Leckie visited Canadian-trained fliers at their "readiness stations" and found the fliers "anxious to meet the enemy." His trip showed, he said, that the air training plan is turning out good airmen, and he added:

"Just give us the airplanes and we'll provide the pilots."

CHAPTER XXXVI

HASTENING to the Art Exhibit, Vicky was obsessed with but one idea, namely, to break down the formidable barrier of misunderstanding which existed between herself and Eric. Just how this was to be accomplished in a crowded art gallery was not clear.

ERIC LOVES HER

She kept going over the simple outline of her realization. Eric loved her. How could she have doubted it? He had proved it in a thousand ways. Eric might despise women as a class, but he loved Vicky Gaylord.

He believed, and with very good cause, that Vicky still languished for James Albert Foster. Therefore his gruffness, his pretended aversion. Of course, there was the possibility that she might be wrong. Vicky admitted this reluctantly, immediately piling up the signs of Eric's unending kindnesses. The kindnesses had not been idle speeches but actions. Those actions must mean love

Arriving at the gallery, circumstances played into her hands. She hesitated in the arched doorway, her eyes searching feverishly for Eric. A group of distinguished appearing men and women stood before the painting of herself, but he was not among them. He was nowhere to be seen. Disappointment swept over her and she turned to an attendant.

"Where is Mr. Latimer?" she inquired fearfully.

"He is taking a long distance call," the man told her. "You will find him down that corridor, second door to the right."

Vicky fled down the corridor, the sound of Eric's voice coming to her as she approached the second door on the right. He sat, with his back turned to her, on the edge of a table, swinging his foot.

"Yep," she heard him say, "Vicky's picture received the Redfern Award. A piece of luck for me. Swell of you to be interested, Ann."

So he was talking with Ann. Vicky went swiftly to his side, leaning confidingly against him, one hand reaching for the telephone.

Eric said, "Wait a minute, Ann. Here's Vicky. I'm putting her on." For an instant his arm went around her, then dropped quickly to his side.

"Hello, darling," Vicky breathed into the telephone. "Aren't we proud of Eric?" Her voice was husky. She caught his lapel with her free hand. "Hold everything, Ann, while I kiss him because I'm so proud — and because I love him so."

Vicky closed her eyes and raised her lips. It was a butterfly kiss but Eric caught his breath. Ann's laugh came across the wire.

Vicky's thrilled half-frightened voice went on. "Ann—the craziest thing—you'll never believe it." She hesitated a moment, searching for words. Then, "Don't think me an utter idiot, Ann, but I never loved James Albert—not really. I've known it underneath for a long time." She pulled at Eric's lapel and his arm went around her, a hard, tense arm, drawing her close.

Ann said, "I'm so glad, Vicky—terribly glad. I've been reading about Jim in the papers. What has become of him?"

"Canada or Mexico, I suppose," Vicky said indifferently. "I saw him Monday in Windsor. He was queer, half-demented. He had ideas of taking me with him and was insisting when Eric arrived and saved the situation—as he has done so many times." Vicky's head leaned against Eric's shoulder. Talking, she darted starry glances into his eyes.

He took the instrument from her hand, saying, "Ann, once you said you would laugh and laugh and very likely have hysterics when I fell in love. Well, go ahead." His voice was low and rich. "Thanks for calling. Be seeing you," he said. Replacing the telephone, he took Vicky in his arms.

I LOVE YOU

"I love you—dreadfully, Eric," she whispered tearfully.

He kissed her eyes and the hollow of her throat and her trembling lips. "Sweetheart—darling—" he murmured.

After awhile, when Vicky could speak coherently, she said, "The anulment, Eric—has Patterson done anything about it?"

He grinned down at her. "Patterson has never heard the word mentioned."

"I'm so happy, Eric—" she sighed, moving her lips across his cheek until they found his.

And, after another while, she asked, "Must I be a singing star? I don't like microphones and strange faces and insincere adulation."

His arms tightened. "Of course you needn't be a singing star. We'll tell Patterson to return the contract with your refusal," he said throatily. "Yo ushall sing just for me—"

"And for our little boys and girls," she added shyly.

"Sweet—"

MY WIFE

They went together to the gallery. A radiance about them caused heads to turn, talk to cease. They stopped many times, Eric to say, "I want you to meet my wife." The introductions were made proudly, joyously. "She inspired my paintin'" he would say, or "She is the little bride who came forth."

Vicky's advent caused quite a commotion. It was rather dramatic, the beautiful bride of the portrait and the artist's bride, one and the same.

Newspaper men, on the trail of human interest stories, bounded from nowhere with zestful glee. Here was a story. When Vicky admitted that, before becoming Mrs. Eric Latimer, she had been Vicky Gaylord whose singing prowess had recently been news, it was an even better story. Cameras clicked, lights exploded, as she and Eric proceeded the length of the gallery, walking closely, not losing touch.

Before the now-famous painting, "The Bride Came Forth," they halted, standing a little apart from the interested and admiring onlookers. Simultaneously they raised their eyes to the pictured face.

Vicky said, "You did all right, Mr. Latimer."

"I had an excellent subject, Mrs. Latimer," he returned, laughing. "Love guided my hand," he added.

Her eyes adored him as she asked, "Did you love me then?"

"Then and always," he told her soberly. After a moment he said, "Don Caliente, a wealthy collector from Mexico, wants to buy the painting. He has a fondness for blondes."

Vicky slid her fingers into his. "Let him have it," she said. "I don't like that girl. She was a sap. She hadn't a dime's worth of brains as you once wisely stated."

"I was a brute," he said, squeezing her hand.

"The most lovable brute in the world," she answered.

Excited conversation interrupted them. They turned as a man announced loudly, "He's been found—Foster, that alien rotter. The bulletin has just come in."

Vicky and Eric stepped toward the bearer of news. Someone said, "Ah—good—" Someone else asked, "Where'd they pick him up?"

The informed gentleman stated, "They found his plane, a mass of wreckage, in the Vermont hills. The authorities believe it to be suicide—and a good job done."

Eric's horrified glance met Vicky's. He said through stiff lips, "James Albert Foster knew where he was going. He wanted to take you with him."

Her fingers curled around his hand. "But I stayed with you, Eric," she said softly, adding, "Poor Jim. There was no other future for him. We have life, darling, and love. What happened to James Albert cannot touch us." She looked into Eric's somber face.

Her smile, the love in her eyes said plainer than words that James Albert was already part of a dim past, a past never to raise its ugly head again.

Eric pulled her hand through his arm. "Shall we go home?" he asked. "I want to show you something in my studio, something that will win the Redfern Award another year."

They walked slowly toward the arched doorway. "I saw it, Eric," she said. "When I looked at the picture of Eric Latimer's wife I knew that Eric loved his wife. I hurried to you, darling—so fast—"

They went down the wide marble stairs, side by side, Eric Latimer and his bride, going home at last.

THE END

McKenney On Bridge

By WM. E. McKENNEY, America's Card Authority

Oswald Jacoby is listed as the fifth member of my team for 1942. Jacoby accumulated 110 Master Points in 1941. He won the knockout team-of-four in the Eastern. He was second in the world championship Masters pairs, the world championship Masters team-of-four, the Vanderbilt national knockout team-of-four and the national mixed team-of-four. He finished third in the national shipmen's pair championship.

Jacoby

On several occasions he was selected as the outstanding player of the year. He is the top holder of Master Points among the Life Masters. His activities with the War Production Board may curtail his tournament competition this year, but if he does get away for any of the national events, I predict that he can be counted upon to win, place or show in one of them.

Jacoby thought that today's hand was one of his most interesting in 1941. East won the first two tricks with top diamonds, then led a low diamond.

Knowing that West was void of the suit, Jacoby (South) discarded his club loser and West trumped. West then found the right defense by leading a trump, to prevent a heart ruff.

After winning with the king of spades, dummy cashed the ace of clubs and led another for South to ruff. It was disappointing to find the bad break, but knowledge of the break now enabled Jacoby to claim the rest of the tricks. He demonstrated that, when he cashed all his trumps, he would develop a double squeeze.

When he led his last trump, West would be compelled to hold the queen of clubs, and therefore could hold only two hearts. Dummy would then let go the last club, saving two hearts and a diamond.

In order to keep the diamond ten, East likewise would have to discard down to two hearts. Then Jacoby would cash the ace and king of hearts and the jack was sure to win the last trick.

Take stock of your "Beauty Ammunition!" You should have two shades of face powder, at least three shades of eyeshadow. A lipstick for your handbag, one for your dressing table, both of the same shade. Don't commit that beauty sin of applying one shade of lipstick at home and touching up with another shade when you are outside! Always have an extra powder puff, a jar of mask, a tiny bottle of some extra-special perfume to add that special lure upon occasion!
